Kennedy, Aides Chart Policies; Hint Meeting With Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy spent 3½ hours Saturday with top military and diplomatic advisers reportedly considering ways to bolster U. S. might in preparation for negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The buildup process is expected to take months but does not rule out a completely informal meeting between Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev in the spring. Kennedy is understood to be willing to have such a get-acquainted session.

Should plans for an informal talk develop—there are none yet—Kennedy would meet first with one or more Allied leaders, diplomats said.

The possibility of a session between the new President and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who is meeting with French President Charles de Gaulle this weekend, is alreay being discussed with London.

Some of the results of Kennedy's conference Saturday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other officials will be reflected in his State of the Union message to Congress Monday.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the conference was concerned with "overall world problems." He did not give details. Those present included Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and several other advisers.

To some officials it appeared that Kennedy was seeking at the outset of his regime to achieve more muscle and less tough talk.

The White House took a hand in toning down a speech Friday night by Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, the chief of naval operations who has a reputation for strong language about the Russians.

Officials familiar with Kennedy's views said he wants to avoid statements by officials which Khrushchev might consider provocative or might label provocative for propaganda purposes.

Kennedy also clearly wants time in which to complete his policy reviews and development of new proposals.

At the same time, it is understood, the President and his secretary of state do not wish to be in the position of seeming to stall

Fliers, Families Reunited: Questions Remain Unanswered

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — John McKone and Freeman Olmstead came home Sunday, rushed through a restrained ceremony and were reunited in private with the children they had not seen in eight months.

The two Air Force captains, released Wednesday after nearly seven months as prisoners in Russia, began a period of secluded relaxation with their families.

"I'd say they're real tired at this point," said an Air Force officer who accompanied the men on their flight from Washington to Topeka.

Newsmen have not been allowed to talk to the two since they were released. Col. Charles Van Vliet, an information officer, told newsmen the fliers expressed joy at being at Forbes Air Base where they were stationed before being shot down over the Barents Sea near Russia last July 1.

"Boy," Van Vliet quoted one of the fliers as saying as the plane neared Forbes, "there are the old RBs — RB47 reconnaissance bombers used at Forbes. Don't they look great. Look, there are some H's—a model H RB47."

There still were no answers for questions which have troubled the public and some national political figures since the fliers were released.

One of the major points was the fate of three other Forbes fliers who were on the plane with McKone and Olmstead.

"We are greatly concerned about getting information to the wives of the other men," Van Vliet said. He said that he had not gotten into any conversation with McKone and Olmstead about this point.

As newsmen pressed Van Vliet with questions which he said he

Jet Airliner Crashes Into Ocean, 6 Die

AMAGANSETT, N.Y. (AP) — A jet airliner on a training flight rolled over in the air Saturday and crashed into the Atlantic Ocean off the eastern tip of Long Island with a loss of six lives.

No passengers were in the plane which cost $5 million.

The victims aboard the plane were three instructors and three jet trainees. There were no survivors.

What caused the crash was not known immediately. Planes normally are put through more strenuous maneuvers on training flights than in regular passenger service.

The huge airliner, capable of carrying 179 passengers, had taken off from New York's Idlewild Airport, about 100 miles west of here, and crashed at about 1:15 p.m. in clear weather.

"The plane rolled over and over," said Capt. Frank Ward, a Montauk Point fishing boat owner, who saw the aircraft's last moments as he was driving west on Old Montauk Highway.

"It straightened out and then I saw an engine on fire," he said. "It headed toward the ocean."

He said he drove to a point opposite where the plane crashed and ran to the beach.

"I saw nothing but wreckage," he said.

The accident was the fourth involving a modern jetairliner in the New York area in the last two years—two of the planes on training missions. They cost 149 lives.

OLIVERS CHARGE CRUELTY

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Divorce decrees were granted Friday to both Adolph and Constance Oliver.

Each charged cruelty.

Finletter Named Envoy To NATO

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Saturday selected Thomas K. Finletter, former Air Force secretary, to be U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic council.

Finletter is 67, a Democrat and currently a partner in a New York investment banking firm. His nomination is subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Finletter was secretary of the Air Force from 1950 to 1953, after serving the government in several other capacities and practicing law. He established something of a reputation in the field of international policy as head of the Marshall plan mission to Great Britain back in 1948 and 1949.

Four Children Die When Fire Sweeps Home

GLASFORD, Ill. (AP) — Four children died in their beds Saturday when fire swept their two-story home and blocked their parents' efforts to rescue them.

Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Glass were asleep downstairs when the fire broke out. Flames turned them back from the stairway to the children's upstairs bedrooms, and they were driven outside.

The Peoria County coroner's office said smoke inhalation killed Lorraine, 9; Charles, 8; Davis, 6, and Jeffrey, 3. A fifth child, Audrey, 4, survived her brothers and sister because she was spending the night with grandparents.

Glass, 31, and his wife, 27, were unharmed. He is a truck driver for the National Biscuit Co.

Fire Chief Everett Taylor said the blaze began in an overheated, coal-burning, pot-bellied stove, the only heating apparatus in the house. It then spread to a wooden partition, he said. The interior of the house was destroyed, and Taylor estimated damage at $6,000.

U. N. Commander Fears Civil War Will Break Out In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The United Nations military commander in the Congo Sunday acknowledged he fears full-scale conflict between the country's rival blocs — and confessed that U.N. troops could do little to stop the fighting once it began.

"I think the situation is serious," Lt. Gen. Sean MacKeown of Ireland told a news conference. "But I believe a serious clash is still avoidable."

While he spoke, troops of Gen. Joseph Mobutu were being flown to northern Congo to deal with a thrust reportedly made by Lumumbist troops into Equator Province. Unconfirmed reports from the area told of clashes between the two sides near the town of Bumba.

MacKeown told newsmen he considered a full-scale clash between Mobutu and Lumumbist forces "would be disastrous for the future of the Congo."

The threat of conflict comes at a time when more than 5,000 troops are being withdrawn by their governments from the 20,000-strong U.N. Congo force.

"If the withdrawals take place we will be faced with an entirely new situation," MacKeown said. "It will be necessary to make new dispositions of the troops."

The general voiced hope that new troops will be provided by U.N. member nations.

"Generally speaking," he said, "I regard 20,000 troops as the minimum."

With Lumumbist feeling running high over the recent transfer of ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba to a prison in Katanaga, fears have been widely expressed that both sides are building up for a showdown.

President Joseph Kasavubu is reported negotiating a "common front" military pact with President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and President Albert Kalonji of southern Kasai—both of them bitterly anti-Lumumba although disowning allegiance to Kasavubu.

Prepare Chimpanzee For Ride Into Space On Tuesday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Six young chimpanzees began final preparations Saturday for a rocket ride one of them will take next week to blaze a trail for human space travel.

On Monday night, 12 hours before the scheduled launch time, medical men will decide which of the six is best fitted physically and psychologically for the jolting ride intended to take the ape 115 miles high and 290 miles down the Atlantic missile range.

If the chimp and his space capsule come through the 16-minute, 4,200-mile-an-hour ride unscathed, one of America's astronauts probably will take an identical trip into space within two months.

The upcoming flight is designed to determine how the small passenger reacts under extreme forces of acceleration and re-entry and during a five-minute period of giddy weightlessness. The chimps have been trained to perform a series of lever-pushing tasks during the ride.

A chimpanzee was selected for the journey because his body and mind most nearly resemble man's.

Four of the candidates for the flight are male, two female. They are between 3½ and 4 years old, with weights ranging from 27 to 47 pounds. During the final days before the scheduled blastoff of the Redstone booster rocket, they will undergo repeated medical checks and bone up on their lever-pushing chores.

"When the time comes for selection," a National Space Agency official reported, "we will pick a primary chimp and an alternate. If the primary animal gets cold feet, we'll use the other."

Electronic sensors will be attached to the ape's body. These will measure heart beat, body temperature, respiration and task performance during flight. The animal will be zipped into a plastic couch, with only his head and arms free to move. Three hours before launch time, the couch will be fastened securely to the floor of the one-ton Project Mercury space capsule atop the rocket.

Mounted on the inner wall of the airtight couch, at the chimpanzee's chest level, will be a panel with three lights—red, white and blue—and two levers, one by

Kennedy Wants Speeches On Reds Toned Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—A speech by Adm. Arleigh A. Burke was rewritten in line with President Kennedy's wish to omit anti-Soviet truculence from speeches by military leaders, administration officials said Saturday.

Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger said people at the White House were "among those who counseled that it be rewritten." Kennedy himself did not see the speech, Salinger said.

The White House spokesman declined to say how the rewriting was done or what language was deleted.

Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., protested the White House was gagging the chief of naval operations.

"Does this mean that we are entering an era of appeasement with Communist Russia?" demanded Bridges, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Officials said Kennedy has issued no formal order, but has let it be known he wants the speeches of military men and other government officials toned down to permit possible betterment of U.S.A.-Soviet relations.

One immediate effect, these officials said, was the rewriting of a speech given by Burke Friday night before a business publications group.

In that speech, as revised, Burke spoke of the Navy being ready for the task of keeping open the water routes of the free world nations. He also said the United States is the strongest nation in the world.

Burke submitted his speech in advance to the State Department and the White House, officials said. This was in accordance with long - standing rules requiring clearance of public statements on foreign affairs.

'TAX CONSCIENCE MONEY'

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP)—An anonymous but apparently conscience-stricken taxpayer has sent McLean County $1,000 which officials say is the biggest such windfall in county history.

William Kinsella, county supervisor of assessments, said his office received an envelope containing a $500 bill and five $100 bills last week. Clipped to the bills was a note saying, "tax conscience money."

The envelope, sent by regular mail, bore 14 cents worth of stamps and an illegible postmark which seemed to end in "burg," officials said, adding there is no community in the county which ends in "burg."

SHARP EARTHQUAKE JOLTS S. CALIFORNIA

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—One of Southern California's sharpest earthquakes in several years jolted parts of the area Saturday, rocking buildings in Barstow and Bakersfield and swaying some chandeliers in Los Angeles.

The epicenter apparently was in a sparsely populated desert region, and there were no reports of damage.

Seismologists at the University of California at Berkeley and at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena recorded a severe shock lasting 47 seconds starting at 12:13 a.m.

Dr. Don Tocher at Berkeley and Dr. Charles Richter of Caltech estimated the quake center was on the Mojave Desert, about 130 miles north and slightly east of Pasadena.

Excited citizens in the Wilshire, Hollywood and Highland Park areas of Los Angeles swamped police switchboards with calls.

Brazil Plans To Intern Ship, Offer Asylum To Rebel Captain

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The United States asked Brazil Saturday night to grant the rebel skipper of the seized Portuguese liner Santa Maria safe conduct to discharge captive passengers at a Brazilian port. Brazilian officials said they would seize the ship and return it to its owners but grant rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao asylum if he asked for it.

A U. S. official said Ambassador John Moors Cabot was closeted with Brazilian Foreign Ministry officials in an attempt to bring them around to letting Galvao put his 588 passengers ashore at Recife or Belem.

"We are negotiating from a humanitarian angle to get the passengers off the ship," said a U. S. official. "They—the Brazilians—don't want to let the ship into port without interning it."

The Brazilian Foreign Ministry said they too were thinking in humanitarian terms and "the Brazilian government wants to assure the safety of the passengers and will aid in any way it can."

He said the Brazilians took the position they must abide by international law and seize the ship and hold Galvao for questioning at least.

A Brazilian Foreign Ministry source said, however, he believed the ship would put into "a Brazilian port." He left the impression this might be Recife, possibly Monday.

His indication tallied with reports the U. S. Navy destroyer Wilson may rendezvous with the Santa Maria Monday 50 miles off the Recife coast.

Meanwhile, the Brazilian Foreign Ministry said U. S. military aircraft have been given authorization to resume search flights for the Santa Maria from Brazilian territory.

Brazil issued an order Friday night grounding U. S. search planes at Recife and Belem. Brazilian authorities said the planes flew into Brazil without authorization.

Reports said U. S. authorities had requested permission to land two planes but that many more craft had landed.

Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith Jr., commander of the U.S. Caribbean Sea Frontier, arrived in Belem by plane from San Juan Saturday night "to be available to meet the Santa Maria if the ship decides to confer.

"I'm here just in case something breaks," he told newsmen.

In San Juan, meanwhile, a Navy spokesman disclosed that the Santa Maria has experienced some engine trouble. The spokesman, Cmdr. Tom Nutt, said the trouble was reported in a message which was part of a continuing exchange between the Navy and the ship.

Cuba Demands Death Penalty For 6 Americans

HAVANA (AP)—The government Saturday demanded the death penalty for six American adventurers tried on charges of trying to join anti-Castro forces in Cuba.

Their trial before a five-man military court at La Cabana fortress was completed in 2 hours and 35 minutes. The verdict may not be returned until Monday.

The Americans claimed they came to Cuba to join Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary government and not his opponents.

Their court-appointed Cuban attorneys asked the court to acquit or deport them as a sign of good will toward the new U. S. administration of President Kennedy.

The defendants smoked, drank coffee and whispered among themselves in the packed courtroom as the prosecution summed up its case, asserting the charges against them—"crimes against the state"—had been "fully proven."

The prosecution asked the court for the maximun penalty—death by firing squad.

There was no indication the requested sentence was immediately understood by the Americans, who speak no Spanish.

Europe Gives Kennedy High Rating On 1st Week In Office

PARIS (AP)—West Europeans closely scrutinized President Kennedy's conduct during his first week in office and with rare accord chalked up positive marks.

Political leaders and editorial writers grasped hopefully at the signs of an easing of tension between Moscow and Washington, though a few wondered how long the honeymoon would last.

Even Western Europe's strongest Communist parties, in Italy and France, put aside their vitriol. They advised a new look at the intentions of the United States with Kennedy at the helm.

The independent and widely respected Le Monde of Paris set the general tone with an editorial headed "Good Manners."

Speaking of the liberation of two imprisoned RB47 fliers by the Soviet Union and Kennedy's assurance that U2 flights over the Soviet Union will not be resumed, Le Monde said: "(These) two obstacles had since last summer barred the way to a resumption of negotiations between East and West. These obstacles are now lifted."

Le Monde said Kennedy handled himself with "clairvoyance and adeptness" in his Wednesday news conference, his first as president.

West Germany's Social Democratic party spoke enthusiastically of Kennedy's inaugural address.

"There are and will always be hours in the history of mankind when a powerful man through the proclamation of his ideas lights up the picture of the world, making the obscure clear and showing new ways. That is what Kennedy, the young president of the United States, succeeded in doing," the Social Democratic party said.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic party said Kennedy has shown himself to be a "man determined to attack the problems facing him with initiative and energy."

Kennedy's comments indicated he will not be "seduced into a spectacular summit conference," the party press service said.

Showing a note of restraint, the independent Frankfurther Allgemeine said "Regardless of how much one welcomes the gesture (of the pilots' release), one would like to warn all those who dream of an abrupt improvement in American-Soviet relations."

Eight Firemen Die Fighting Factory Blaze In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Brick walls collapsed on more than 20 firemen fighting a spectacular factory blaze Saturday, killing at least eight men.

Eight bodies were recovered from the mountain of rubble at the fire scene on the near Northwest Side. One other firefighter was missing.

Fourteen other firemen were rescued and hospitalized after the collapse of the walls of one of two factory buildings destroyed in the $500,000 fire on the near Northwest side.

Several firemen who answered cries of help from those buried under the debris of the walls were crushed to death when the roof of the second building fell in on them.

Rescuers battled cold, debris, flaming timbers and on setting darkness in their efforts to recover bodies.

Some of the equipment fighting the factory fire was called away to battle a second spectacular blaze, which wrecked a three-story brick building on the North Side which housed a bowling alley, a dance hall, stores and apartments.

Four persons were injured, one critically, in the second blaze which caused damage estimated in excess of $200,000. Officials of the bowling alley where the fire apparently started said the blaze may have been set deliberately by disgruntled teen-agers.

A series of alarms brought 316 men and 67 pieces of equipment to the Northwest Side blaze shortly after dawn. Later two fireboats tied up in the Chicago River nearby began pumping water on the fire.

The firemen were trapped when 9th Battalion Chief George Kuhn led a group to the roof of the two-story factory building to see if they could run a hose line into the burning six-story building.

Other firemen heard their cries of help and rushed into the smaller building. The roof collapsed on them.

"I was about seven feet from the wall, trying to get to a window, when I heard a rumble," said fireman Joseph Taylor, 25, " I got out, thank God. I saw other guys running. One man was running on a broken foot."

Among those trapped when the roof collapsed was 1st Battalion Chief George Rees. Rescuers could hear his cries:

"My God! Oh, please God, somebody please find me. Please get me out."

Rescuers sighted Rees after a half hour of feverishly tunneling a 10 foot shaft into the building through the wreckage. But they needed another half hour to reach him, and by that time he was dead.

"I don't know what to say," said fire Commissioner Robert Quinn, tears welling in his eyes as Rees was lifted from the rubble. "He was one of the greatest firemen I ever knew..."

Some survived by near miracles.

Phil Ferrence, 35, said he was starting to get out of a smoke-filled truck when the wall started tumbling.

Ice Jam Traps Towboats, Barges In Mississippi

Rescued was the 2,000-horsepower Havana Zephyr of the Huffman Towing Co., St. Louis.

The 6,000-horsepower J.D. Hagues II of the Mississippi Valley Barge Lines cut through to the Havana Zephyr and pulled it into clear water. Workers also cut loose three of its four barges, loaded with bulk concrete. The fourth was still trapped Saturday night.

Before it was set free, the Havana Zephyr was aground on the Illinois side and tipping under the weight of the shifting ice. Several windows in the boat had been broken.

Efforts to rescue the Tri-Cities, trapped in ice near the Missouri side with six loaded oil barges, will be made Sunday. It appeared to be in no danger.

The huge ice gorge developed just above the mouth of the Ohio River at Cairo as temperatures skidded below zero in some of the coldest weather in the area in years.

The Tri-Cities and its tow appeared to be trapped in the ice near the Missouri side but seemed to be in no danger.

The Sally Polk, which appeared in danger of being locked in for a time, broke its way out and was assisting other vessels.

The weight of ice floes coming down the river caused ice to pile up in masses eight to twelve feet high in places.

Another two-mile ice gorge built up in the Grand Tower, Ill., area some 70 miles above Cairo. The southbound John Warner managed to cut its way through this one.

The temperature dipped to 12 below zero early Saturday at nearby Cape Girardeau, Mo., the lowest reading there in 4 years. It skidded to 16 below at Marble Hill, also in southeast Missouri, and to

Jacksonville Minister To Preach In Alaska

The First Presbyterian Church of Jacksonville and its pastor, the Rev. Frederick G. Tyrrell, will share in a Preaching Mission to an Alaskan church. From March 5-12, Rev. Mr. Tyrrell will be guest preacher at the Annette Island Presbyterian Church of Metlakatla, located in the southeastern panhandle of the 49th State.

Arrangements for the annual program are made by the Board of National Missions of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. at the request of the two Presbyteries of that denomination in Alaska. Twenty-two ministers from the "South 48" are being released from local responsibilities for a two week period, each to conduct a week of preaching services in an assigned church. Mr. Tyrrell will go to Metlakatla at the request of its pastor, the Rev. Robert Hartness, who was until last summer minister of the Presbyterian church of Auburn, Ill.

Metlakatla is a village of 900 people. Formerly fishing was its chief occupation, but now supplementary means of support are having to be found. A Coast Guard station, and Civil Aeronautics, Weather Bureau and airline personnel are also served by the resident pastor through the interdenominational Annette Protestant Chapel.

Th visiting ministers week's activities will include, besides preaching nightly: visitation, training of laymen for evangelism, and addresses to school assemblies and civic clubs, where these can be arranged. At the end of the week's mission the ministers will tour other Presbyterian projects in Juneau, Ketchikan, Anchorage, and Fairbanks.

This project is intended to be an aid to ministers and congregations often handicapped by isolation and slow growth. The program also broadens the missionary horizons of the churches whose pastors are invited to participate in it.

TB Association Group Addressed By Dr. Greenberg

The Morgan County Tuberculosis Association executive committee met recently in the Board Room at the Jacksonville Public Library with 13 members of the committe present. Dr. McKendree M. Blair presided over the business meeting, calling first upon J. A. Long, treasurer, for a financial report.

Mrs. Verne Anderson, secretary and Morgan County Christmas Seal Campaign chairman, gave a detailed report of the proceedings of the 1960 campaign which was begun in November and reported the campaign was again a success in Morgan county. Many letters were read which had accompanied the contributions sent in each one expressed the thought the sender was happy to participate in the traditional sale of Christmas Seals each November as it represents the care and advice to those who need it.

Dr. Morris Greenberg, administrator at Oaklawn Sanatorium, spoke regarding the current tubercular skin-testing program now being conducted in the schools, both in the county, and in Jacksonville. The program started Jan. 9, and will continue into spring and includes films as well as health materians.

Dr. Greenberg works with the District 117 school nurses as well as with nurses from the Morgan County Health Department. Material consisting of the consent cards which the children and students take to their homes for parent or guardian's signature, as well as that used for the skin-testing itself, are all furnished through the proceeds from the annual Christmas Seal campaign. The consent cards this year were prepared through the direction of Miss Swanson and Mrs. Witte.

Mrs. Harry Killam of Chapin was unanimously elected to serve as a director of the Association to fill the unexpired term occasioned by the death of Mrs. Harry Onken of Chapin.

Mothers March On Polio Jan. 31 At Hardin, Ill.

HARDIN—Plans for the "Mothers' March" in Hardin have been announced by the co-chairmen of the event, Mrs. Arthur Clark and Mrs. Ray H. Johnson, Jr. The canvass will take place Tuesday. Volunteer workers will meet at Beaty's Store at 6 p.m. for materials and instructions, and will begin their calls at 6:30 p.m.

The chairmen hope to have enough workers that the canvass can be completed in one hour, and the women will return to the meeting place at 7:30 p.m. to turn over the collections and to have refreshments. There is need for several more workers, according to the co-chairmen, and they have asked anyone willing to help, to get in touch with one of them.

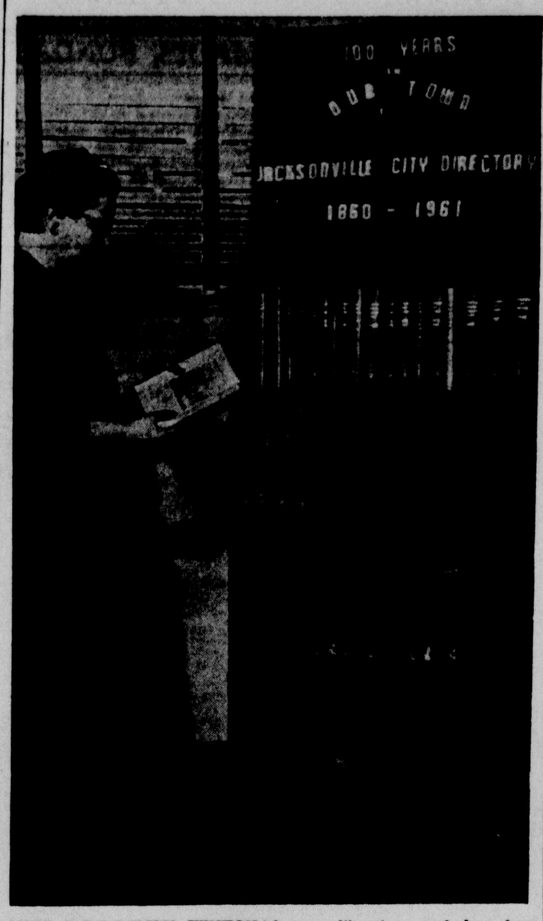
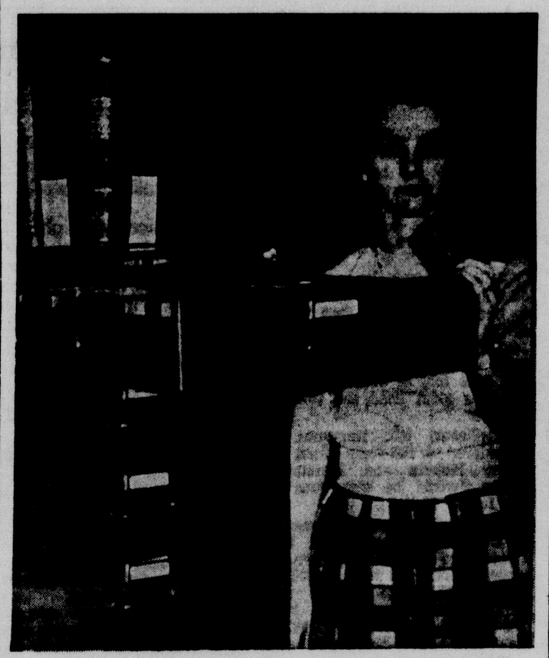
Your Town – 1860-1961

During recent months the Jacksonville Public Library has completed three distinct additions to the many services it offers. All three will be useful to patrons, but will be of particular value to historians, students and genealogists.



MISS DOROTHY FENTON, librarian, is shown with the collection of city directories, dating from the first one published in 1860 to the one just distributed this month. There are 50 volumes in the collection.

This project was begun six years ago by Miss Frances Bailey, former librarian, and has been completed by Miss Fenton. More than half of the volumes were gathered in such a condition that they required considerable repair and rebinding. Altogether, the collection is unique and remarkable, one that is held by very few public libraries in the nation.



THROUGH COOPERATION with the Illinois State Historical Library in Springfield and the Jacksonville Journal Courier the local library has made large additions to its newspaper microfilm collection during the past six months.

The microfilm collection was begun by the Journal Courier about 15 years ago. It and a microfilm reader was presented to the library as a memorial to the late W. D. Doying, who labored through a long life for the betterment of the Jacksonville Courier. He also gave much of his time to the public library, and served on its board for more than 20 years.

The file of the Jacksonville Journal from its beginning to the present time is now almost complete; about half of the Courier file has been filmed. Work on both will be continued.

The two out-of-print histories of Morgan county shown in the photograph also have been filmed.

The census lists show who lived here at the time, in what precinct, his age, his occupation, the assessed valuation of his real estate and personal property, and the names and ages of his immediate family. This information is of especial interest to people interested in compiling a history of their family.

Legislators, Farm Bureau Members Meet In Pike

PITTSFIELD — One hundred per cent turnout of State Legislators and Farm Bureau members of the 49th State Legislative District was experienced at the Farm Bureau Hall in Pittsfield Thursday night.

Albert J. Cross, in charge of the Department of Local Government for the Illinois Agricultural Association, presented Farm Bureau policies.

These are the policies adopted by voting delegates of Farm Bureau in November of 1960.

Main resolutions covered by Mr. Cross were state revenue and property tax relief, agricultural chemicals, reclamation of strip mined areas, migratory farm labor living conditions, and annexing farm land to municipalities.

State revenue and property tax relief required more time and brought about more discussion than the total of all the other resolutions.

On Advisory Council

J. H. Voshall, superintendent of the Pittsfield Community Unit school district, has been appointed to membership on the regional advisory council for Western Illinois University which will hold its first meeting Feb. 2 at Macomb. Army Recruiter Has Advice For Parents

U.S. Army Recruiting Station,
Jacksonville, Ill.

Dear Parent:

I, too, am a parent of a teen-age son. While it is difficult to realize, one must admit that after graduation from high school he will be a man and must be able to take his place in a man's world. Also, at this time, with the assistance and guidance of his parents, he must make a big decision in reference to his Military Service obligation. As you probably well know, there are a number of ways in which he may serve this military obligation, each of which has several definite advantages and disadvantages.

Having been in military service since 1938, I feel qualified in helping your son make this decision. I have been associated with all branches of the service during the past 23 years, and have selected the United States Army as the branch with the most normal way of life, the best promotion program, shortest enlistment period (three years), unlimited educational opportunities, and a choice of over 100 trades from which to select, with a written guarantee before enlistment.

Your son will be trained to be self-sufficient, to accept responsibility and will have a chance to associate with a cross-section of people of the United States and the Free World. He will be encouraged to attend services with the church of his choice. If he chooses to stay in the Army, he will be eligible for retirement after 20 years. If he chooses to return to civilian life after three years, he will have been taught a trade which he may follow as a civilian.

It will be a pleasure for me to fully discuss with you and your son the many choices and different options available to a young man today as an enlistee in the United States Army. At your convenience, please feel free to call CHestnut 3,2407 for an appointment. Or see me at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, 218 South Main street any week-day afternoon.

Sincerely,
Hugh G. Cronk,
SFC, U. S. Army.

TIPS ON LIVER

Liver is all meat and no bone. It has little fat, so needs additional fat during cooking. Too high temperature or too long cooking tends to make the liver less tender and also tends to destroy the flavor.

Brown a little chopped onion and green pepper in fat in a skillet; add drained canned red kidney beans and heat, mashing the beans a little.

Local Teacher Gives Questers Club Program

The January meeting of the Land o' Lincoln Questers was held Sunday at the home of Crit Haneline in Jacksonville.

The president, Mrs. Orin V. Duncan of Winchester, presided at a short business meeting.

The program of the afternoon was given by Orin V. Duncan, on Old American Homes. Mr. Duncan teaches history at Jacksonville High School.

He began by reviewing the earliest American shelters. It is believed that the first shelters for the earliest settlers were crude wigwams built of bark, sticks and rushes. Later dug-out in the side of a hill, with a rough enclosed outside porch were common.

An improvement was a rectangular one room building, whose sides were slabs driven into the ground like logs in a stockade. Light was admitted through the door and perhaps one window. This was covered by a roof of thatches or shakes. An example of this is on display at Plymouth, Mass.

Origin Of Log Cabin

Although the common idea is that early settlers lived in log cabins, there were none of these until the Swedes and Norwegians came and built log cabins like their old homes in Scandinavia. From then on the log cabin was a prime favorite, because of the abundance of timber.

During these early colonial days there were many good frame homes built both in the north and south, for government officials and wealthy persons. These were modeled after the English Elizabethan cottage, with leaded diamond paned windows, steep roof, and overhang on the upper story.

Some of these were only one room wide and a lean-to was built in the back as family needs grew. This form, with the long sloping back roof was known as the saltbox, typical of many a New England and mid-west farm home.

The low roofed story and a half cottages built on Cape Code and the Massachusetts mainland, with their great central chimney set the pattern for thousands of comfortable homes in the United States.

Georgian Style Appears

As the colonies progressed in wealth, and bricks became more available a large number of English Georgian two story homes, with small paned windows, tall chimneys and dormers were constructed. This is a favorite style for middle class American homes, and college buildings. The weathered buildings of William and Mary College at Williamsburg, Va., were designed in Georgian by Sir Christopher Wren.

In Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Hampshire were many stately two story frame homes, usually in white. Many of these were square, with a flat roof, or pyramidal roof with a flat top. Sometimes there was a cupalo or promenade on the roof. In New Hampshire and Connecticut a number of the more imposing of these homes have been converted to inns for the tourist trade.

Travelers through the solid German settlements around Lancaster and York, Pa., are impressed by the huge two story stone farm houses, flanked by equally imposing stone barns. The interiors of these homes have low ceilings often with beams exposed, wide flooring, solid board doors with huge strap hinges, and cavernous walk in fireplaces.

Greek Influence

Thomas Jefferson, an admirer of the Greek Parthenon put Greek columns on the portico of his home, Monticello. There followed a rash of Greek columns on porches of homes and public buildings over the country. The most striking of these was Andalusia, the home of Nicholas Biddle near Philadelphia. This type was known as Greek revival.

The final style which affected American architecture was the Moorish or Spanish. The lacy iron porticos and shaded patios in New Orleans, the long stucco ranch houses, and tile roofed towered missions of the southwest typify this kind of architecture.

The interiors of the New England and Virginia plantation mansions matched their external grace and beauty. They had rich paneling and beams, carved curving staircases, frescoed ceilings and woodwork of walnut or other rare woods. The furniture was of Sheraton, Heppelwhite and Hitchcock pieces, Revere and other fine silver, Staffordshire and Loewstoeft china were on the hutches and in the cabinets. Fine oil paintings and draperies hung on the walls, and Oriental rugs covered the floors.

Although these people did not enjoy central heating and modern plumbing, otherwise they lived as well or better than their modern descendants.

Naples Boat Club Growing At Rapid Pace

Recently the Naples Boat Club lifted its ban on accepting new members. At the January meeting four applications were accepted. At the present time the greater part of membership is divided between Jacksonville and Springfield residents with the balance shared by people from Bluffs, Winchester, White Hall and Naples.

The clubhouse is located at Naples with a launching ramp and floating dock in the Illinois river. The club at present is so far ahead of its originally planned schedule plans call for no work to be done between Memorial Day and Labor Day, so members may enjoy facilities already acquired to make boating more enjoyable in the coming season.

Last summer, in between the building of docks and remodeling of the clubhouse, fleets of up to 14 boats, all flying the pennant of the Naples Boat Club, made two trips to Pere Marquette Park at Grafton; one to the Apple Festival at Hardin, several to Beardstown, Havana and Peoria and the largest fleet of the season went to the impressive ceremony, Blessing of the Fleet, held at the Our Lady of the Rivers Shrine at Portage-des-Sioux, Mo. where thousands gathered.

A Salvage and rescue squad will be organized this year along with many other club events. Edward J. Lonergan, Springfield, is the club's Commodore and Floyd Dunn, Jacksonville, is Vice Commodore.

Morgan's March Of Dimes Poster Kiddies

Money contributed during the current March of Dimes campaign is helping children in this county who are polio victims. Above is Garry Treece, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Treece, 1142 Allen avenue. Garry was stricken just before his 2nd birthday in 1954. The March of Dimes provided hospital care during the acute stage of polio and physical therapy was provided for an extended period of time. He has had three operations and has worn braces provided by the March of Dimes. He attends 3rd grade at Lincoln school and is pictured above with his teacher, Miss Josephine Milligan. Standing is Mrs. Ray McKinley, Morgan County Chairman for the March of Dimes 1961 campaign.

Karen was stricken in September of 1957. Hospitalization insurance carried by her parents greatly helped the family at this time but expenses grew tremendously with repeated trips to various doctors and a succession of braces, fittings, relining of braces, special shoes and X-rays.

Just recently the child was fitted with a new back brace, as seen in the picture taken during the holidays when Santa delighted the child with a large-as-life doll. At this time her mother had to remodel and make an entire new wardrobe for the little girl to wear over the cumbersome brace.

Need Volunteers

Mrs. McKinley has appealed to women's organizations to help with the Mother's March on Polio to be held Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st, headquarters at Salem Lutheran school.

A number of social and service clubs are responding but many more volunteers for the concentrated drive are needed. Students, young people and mothers willing to help in the canvass are asked to meet at the school at 6 p.m. Cars and drivers are being volunteered by members of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange Club, Legion and Road Gents and Jacksonville Junior Chamber of Commerce to reach the various residential areas.

Other groups are donating cookies to be served with hot beverages to the workers at the school.

Jacksonville and South Jacksonville residents are asked to turn on their porchlights Tuesday evening as a welcoming gesture to the volunteer workers and to give as generously as possible.

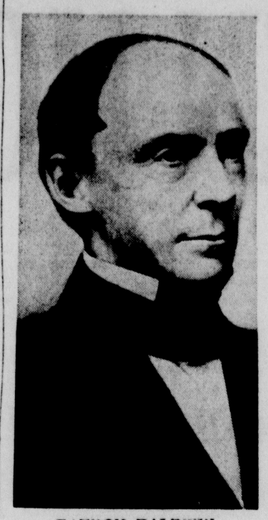
Research Shows Zeal Of Pioneer Educator

A pre-Civil War college founder, fund raiser, "public relations man," missionary, and one of the founders of Illinois College, Theron Baldwin, has been made the subject of a study by Charles Edwin Peterson, Jr. of Baltimore, Md.

Peterson's research for his doctoral dissertion at John Hopkins University has disclosed invaluable information concerning problems encountered by those interested in advancing education in the Old Northwest.



THERON BALDWIN

Baldwin, as Peterson adeptly illustrates, was possessed with a super-human zeal, powerful stamina, and an awe-inspiring faith in mankind. Firmly convinced that "the destiny of one's soul depended on the relation of one's character and life to the Christian religion," Baldwin became dedicated to the missionary cause in the mid 1800's after attending Yale Theological Seminary, 1825-1827.

As a member of the "Yale Band," composed of educational and religious missionaries who founded Illinois College in 1829, Baldwin helped found and remained a trustee of the College until his death in 1870.

Instrumental in female education, Baldwin is also recognized as aiding in the establishment of the Ladies' Association for Educating Females in Jacksonville and the Monticello Female Seminary near Alton.

Peterson feels that his subject's most substantial contribution in advancing an academic society in the "early West" was his work as corresponding secretary for the Society from the Promotion of Collegiate and Theological Education at the West. In his association with the SPCTEW, Baldwin for twenty-five years raised money to "save struggling colleges, provided counsel for harrassed presidents and treasurers, inspired public confidence in the cause (higher education) in the west, and promoted the diffusion of information concerning the state and needs of college education in the entire nation." His early work in this field antedated the beginning of the national and regional collegiate accrediting agencies by more than forty years.

Peterson, in his monograph, has consulted many primary sources including the Theron Baldwin Papers Manuscript Collection, the original minutes of the SPCTEW, and a collection of Baldwin letters in the Illinois College Library, thus giving valuable insight into Baldwin's life as a "builder of colleges."

CHICAGO (AP)—A firmer market for dressed pork and a smaller supply of butcher hogs exerted a strengthening influence in hog trading this week and prices were 50 to 75 cents higher than a week ago.

On one day, the market topped at $19 a hundredweight, the highest price since Dec. 23 when it reached $19.25 on a rather skimpy supply, but the peak was $18.75 at the close.

Offerings both in Chicago and on the 12 major markets were the lightest since August.

The market for slaughter steers steadied somewhat after Monday's liberal offerings of high choice and prime grades. The supply was up about 5 per cent from last week. This and a little weakness in the wholesale market for carcass steer beef contributed to the early setback. Later in the week, however, high choice and prime grade steers found the broadest buying outlets.

In the sheep market, wooled slaughter lambs were mostly $1 higher, largely because of smaller supply and a boost of $1 to $3 in the dressed lamb trade.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week ran its string of weekly advances to five straight and—according to some observers—flashed the signal for a further bullish trend.

The signal came in the action of two familiar market indicators, Standard & Poor's 500-stock index and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials.

Standard & Poor's index in the concluding session rose .62 to 61.24, a new historic high which bettered the previous record of 60.71 reached Aug. 3, 1959.

The Dow industrials, on the same day, broke through strongly above the Aug. 24 recovery high of 641.36, making a net gain on the week of 9.22. This average, at 643.59, was still well below its all-time high of 685.47 reached Jan. 5, 1960.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 2.70 to 232.60, within hailing distance of its historic high of 235.80, also reached Aug. 3, 1959.

The topping of previous highs—and important ones—by these familiar barometers was convincing evidence to market analysts that the trend was upward. Some were outspoken in their beliefs; but the proof still remained in the pudding.

Meanwhile, the government reported that both consumer spending and consumer prices were at record highs. Also on the bullish side were some surprisingly good earning statements by Standard Oil (New Jersey), General Motors, Jones & Laughlin and others.

A 3-for-2 stock split by IBM spurred this stock to an immediate jump of 30 points. After profit taking, IBM closed the week at 638 for a net gain of 14 points. American Telephone's rise of 6¼ also inspired confidence in the market. This issue touched a new historic high of 115½ before backing away.

The Tuesday market was the broadest in history, with 1,294 issues traded. During the entire week, 1,456 issues were traded, of which 769 rose and 572 fell.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Goldfield Consolidated Mines, up ½ at 2 on 239,800 shares.

Corporate bond prices advanced every week this month to make the January spurt the best since August. Despite plus performances the last two weeks, the U.S. government market declined as much as 1¼ points.

The scarcity of new offerings, which reaches back to before Christmas, was universally credited for the strength of the corporate list. Institutional demand widened as investors took note of the short supplies.

Based on the AP averages of 60 bonds the over-all gain was four times better than the December rise. All components of the average finished higher, also for the first month since August when bond prices were at their 1960-61 highs. Many corporates are now approaching or are at these levels.

Daily volume of corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange topped $7 million par value in each session. The weekly total of $38,216,000 was the best since $44,640,000 during Sept. 21-25, 1959. Last week the total was $33,298,000. The daily average moved up to $7,643,200 from $6,659,600.

Kennedy, Aides Chart Policies

Kennedy's intention has been to avoid promoting or encouraging a return to New York by Khrushchev for attendance at the U. N. General Assembly session opening March 7. Khrushchev attended the General Assembly last fall and used it as a forum for berating former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the United States.

Since he has changed his tune with the advent of Kennedy he presumably would not have the same interest as before in coming to New York. But he might want to push the peace offensive he is building around his advocacy of better U.S.-Soviet relations in the Kennedy era.

At any rate, if Khrushchev shows up in New York there is no doubt that Kennedy will be willing to see him. Although Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson caused surprise in Washington by making a public statement to that effect Friday, informed officials here said he knew what he was talking about.

could not answer, he remarked: "I'm burning up with curiosity, too."

When the giant silver four-engined VC97 rolled to a stop, Lt. Gen. John P. McConnell, commander of the 2nd Air Force, escorted Capt. McKone's parents aboard.

Capt. and Mrs. McKone and the senior McKones were escorted to one air police station wagon, the Olmsteads to another and they were escorted to their homes.

Van Vliet said the two fliers will have nothing to do as far as official Air Force duty is concerned "until they are ready to get back to work."

McKone's son was only two weeks old when the captain left here in June. The McKones also have two daughters, Cathy, 5, and Lori, 2.

Murrayville Man Injured In Train - Truck Collision

O. H. Fitzsimmons, who resides two miles south of Murrayville, is a patient at Passavant Hospital suffering from multiple fractures as a result of a truck-train collision near the Melvin Hart farm in the Barrow community west of Roodhouse late Friday. His condition is serious, but not critical. Reports Saturday night said he is progressing nicely.

Unofficial sources indicate Fitzsimmons skidded into the side of a northbound C.B.&Q. freight train. He apparently saw the train approaching and tried to stop, but due to icy conditions on the road skidded across the track. The engine struck the rear of the truck knocking it off the right-of-way into a ditch.

The engineer of the train told authorities he saw the truck and attempted to stop the engine, but was unable to do so in time.

The truck was demolished and Fitzsimmons was thrown through the windshield. He was rushed to Passavant Hospital by the Mackey ambulance.

"For God's sake, get back in there," yelled his partner. Ference retreated to safety amid a shower of brick and rubble.

"I thought it was curtains for me," he said. "I don't know how I did it, but I pushed the door open and crawled through the bricks and timber."

Quinn said the blaze was the worst killer of department personnel in more than 15 years.

Cause of the blaze was not determined.

There were no workers on duty in either building when the fire erupted.

Firemen said the six-story building, housing the Hilker and Bletsch Co., bakery supply firm, "went up like an egg crate." The blaze was fed by oils and other highly inflammable materials used by the firm.

The smaller building, housing the Crown Glass Co., held large quantities of empty one-gallon-sized tin containers, which were strewn over a wide area after the roof collapsed. Firemen formed a chain to pass the cans out before they could proceed with rescue work.

Bull dozers were called in to clear debris before a crane could be moved in close enough to remove several of the bodies.

The North Side fire apparently started in the rear of the bowling alley, then spread rapidly through the building. About 150 persons in the bowling alley fled to safety.

John Jenkins, owner of the bowling alley, said shortly before the blaze several youths were chased from the alley at the rear of the building. He said he believed vandals may have set the fire.

An arson investigation was ordered.

The building was the scene of a St. Patrick's Day tragedy in 1948 when one person was killed and 88 injured in the collapse of a dance hall floor.

Commissioner Quinn gave the estimated damage for both fires.

Horace Greeley was born in the New Hampshire village of Amherst, which is located on Beaver Brook. The Indians called it Quohpuinapassakessanahnog.

Not Stopping For Buses In New Berlin Area

NEW BERLIN—Superintendent Carroll O. Garrison relates that many drivers have violated the "Safety Law" in district 16 in recent months. The law requires drivers to stop their car on any road when a school bus' blinker lights are flashing and the stop arm is out. A reprimand to the driver after the violation does not prevent the accident. Superintendent Garrison states that such violators must be turned over to state authorities, to protect school children. There is a need for all people traveling the highways to be aware and considerate of the 11,000 school buses that are on the roads twice a day during the school term in Illinois.

The Illinois All State Music Activity Committee has chosen five students from New Berlin high school to represent the school at the University of Illinois on Feb 3 and 4. These students are: Irene Hughs, soprano; Sara Lovekamp, alto; Clarence Peecher, tenor; and Rick Riess, baritone of the vocal group. Bob Reichart, French horn, was chosen from the band. Janet Maginn, oboist, also qualified to be recommended to attend, but her name was not chosen. The vocal students will sing with a group of 1100 singers from the state of Illinois, and will be conducted by a prominent professional in the music field on Friday, Feb. 3 and present a concert on Saturday, the 4th.

The band students will play in a band composed of 259 other students from the state of Illinois. Band students will also be conducted by a prominent professional band director.

The formal initiation for freshmen initiates in FHA will be held Monday evening, Jan. 30, at 7:30 at the high school.

Three Cars Damaged In Accidents

Three cars were damaged Saturday in two collisions in Jacksonville. None of the three drivers involved was injured.

At 1:55 p.m. a two car collision occurred at South Main—East Superior intersection. Reports show a car driven south on Main street by Wilbur Mathews and a car turning left onto Main Street from Superior collided. Driver of the second car, Weldon Cooper of Manchester, was given a traffic ticket by investigating officers charging failure to yield the right of way causing an accident.

The red light will flash on just before liftoff and will remain on throughout the flight. The chimp is trained to hit the right-hand lever at least once every 20 seconds when the red light is on. If 20 seconds pass without a hit, the ape receives a small electrical shock through a metal plate fastened to his left foot.

The blue light will blink on every two minutes for five seconds. If the chimp fails to depress the left-hand lever in this five-second period, he receives a shock.

"After three months of training, these chimps are expert at striking the levers in plenty of time," the official reported.

The white light comes on briefly whenever the chimp flicks his paw on a lever. This tells him he is doing the right thing.

The Redstone is geared to push the capsule to an area in the Atlantic Ocean northeast of Grand Bahama Island. A fleet of recovery ships, planes and helicopters will be waiting to fish the space chamber and its passenger from the water.

Medical examination of the chimp will begin immediately. Then the space hero will be returned to Cape Canaveral for further checks and to tell his five simian friends who stayed behind what they missed.

STORMS HARASS SHIPS IN NORTH SEA

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Nine German seamen were rescued Saturday night from their foundering freighter in a North Sea storm believed to have claimed two Soviet trawlers with all hands Friday.

Transfer operations were halted when the captain of stricken 1,450-ton Tete Ollendorf said he and four remaining crewmen would try to ride out the storm.

The nine crewmen were transferred to the Norwegian cruiser J. M. Johansen. None was injured.

Rescue craft rushed to the area off the Norwegian coast near Aalesund after the Tete Ollendorf, out of Lubeck, West Germany, reported that the crew would have to abandon ship.

Farther north — in the arctic Norwegian Sea — the British freighter Orecrest was adrift with its steering mechanism damaged, but in on immediate danger, the Bergen radio reported.

Reports indicated that an undetermined number of Soviet seamen perished Friday when two Soviet trawlers went down with all hands.

All along the west coast of Norway ports were filled with vessels of many nationalities seeking shelter from the weather, with huge waves whipped up by winds which in places reached hurricane force.

U.S. Negotiates For Landing Port For Santa Maria

He did not indicate whether the engine trouble was serious.

The U.S. meeting with the Foreign Ministry came as the latest U. S. Navy fix showed the Santa Maria might be sailing toward a tiny Brazilian island used by the United States as a missile-tracking station.

Brazil's order Friday night grounding U.S. reconnaissance planes which sought to refuel at Recife knocked out direct contact with the seized Portuguese liner, but a U.S. Navy fix had it moving from the equator directly south on the 280-mile route toward Fernando de Noronha.

Here in Rio de Janeiro, U.S. quarters said a landing of the Santa Maria's 42 Americans and other passengers on the island is "not out of the question," though it might be physically hazardous. They indicated, however, that the situation rests with the Brazilian government.

The Foreign Ministry here is taking the official stand that if rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao lands in Brazil, even to let off the passengers, it would have to study the case.

Brazil was reported Saturday to have decided to return the Santa Maria to the Portuguese owners if the captured liner enters Brazilian waters, but to give asylum to the rebel skipper, Capt. Henrique Galvao.

A Foreign Ministry source told of this plan, which may complicate life further for the 588 captive passengers, as the latest U. S. Navy fix showed the Santa Maria might be sailing toward a tiny Brazilian island used by the United States as a missile-tracking station.

That island is Fernando de Noronha, with an area of seven square miles, in the South Atlantic about 250 miles northeast of Natal, on the tip of the Brazilian bulge. Brazil claims control of the waters about it, just as off her mainland.

The Foreign Ministry source, in saying that the liner would be seized and returned to the Portuguese Colonial Navigation Co., explained: "Our long tradition of noninterference in other nations' affairs leads us to stick to the law. We do not consider Galvao a pirate."

This position, disclosed after a high-level Foreign Ministry meeting, could snarl talks between the U. S. Navy and Galvao, a revolutionary foe of Portugal's Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, in such a way that the passengers would have to be transferred at sea. That is a potentially dangerous undertaking.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, it was reported talks between Galvao and U.S. Navy authorities had snarled over the question of a landing at Belem or Recife, Brazil.

Galvao was reported to want Recife, on the eastern bulge of Brazil and not too far off his avowed course toward Angola.

The Navy preferred Belem, an Amazon delta port which is a lot closer to Port Everglades, Fla., where the liner was originally scheduled to call last Tuesday. Belem lies 1,050 miles northwest of Recife.

Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith Jr., commander of the U.S. Caribbean Sea Frontier, flew from San Juan to Belem Saturday "to be available to meet the Santa Maria if the ship decided to confer."

The Navy confirmed that Galvao had sent a secret message to Adm. Robert L. Dennison, commander in chief of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet, and said its nature was classified.

That could have been an elaboration on a message Galvao gave a U.S. Navy flier who flew over the ship Friday. The flier, Cmdr. William Webster, said Galvao told him by radio he was ready to move the Santa Maria into "any selected Brazilian port," for discharge of the passengers.

Webster said Galvao, speaking to him in English by radio, said he had informed Dennison that he would circle a point on the equator at 35 degees west longitude while negotiations were under way. All the passengers were reported well.

The Brazilian marine radio said late Saturday it could not make contact with the ship, although it had been trying once every five minutes.

There were some doubts here that a ship as large as the Santa Maria—610 feet long and with a draft of 27 feet 8 inches—could put into Fernando de Noronha.

The island is surrounded by smaller rocky islands that would make a big ship docking perilous. However, the passengers could be unloaded on smaller boats from the Santa Maria, provided seas were calm on the leeward side.

The island has a civilian population of under 1,000. U.S. military personnel and some Brazilians man the missile tracking station.

Gen. Humberto Delgado, exiled head of the Portuguese national independence movement here, was planning to come to Rio de Janeiro from his home in Sao Paulo, but reasons for his trip were unknown. He is expected here Sunday. Friday night Delgado described Galvao as "delegate plenipotentiary" of his movement against the Salazar regime.

Eleven U. S. planes were grounded at Recife Friday night and the U. S. Navy said the number rose to 14 Saturday. It was announced in San Juan that the Navy, believing the situation might have resulted from Brazilian difficulty in keeping up security and technical checks on the planes, sought to have them released.

Lt. Cmdr. Tom Nutt, a public relations officer at San Juan, said the pursuit had become a matter of a sea chase, with no vessels currently close.

Eight U. S. surface craft apparently were closing in, with the expectation of reaching the area of the Santa Maria by Monday, if not Sunday night. These included the swift nuclear submarine Seawolf. Their job will be to keep an eye on the liner, not to board it.

Portuguese warships also were on the move, with the aim of preventing the Santa Maria from reaching Africa if not to arrest it on the high seas.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS

Journal Courier Sports Editor

The recently concluded 21st annual PMSC Conference Tournament has been declared another successful event and the ISD officials, who were in control of the smooth-running affair, are to be commended. The affair was a financial success despite the fact there were comparatively smaller crowds the first two nights but the fans turned out for the semifinals and finals which was money in the bank for the nine PMSC member teams. The meet also produced some top-notch stars and some high-scoring contests. Jim Bonds, who served as tourney manager, also doubled as ticket-seller Friday night and was kept busy throughout the four-day session. You've heard of the old-time promoters who used to sell tickets, participate in the game and then sweep up the gym following a game? Well, Bonds did just about all these things with the exception of playing. Besides being a successful tourney manager, Bonds was very elated about the whole thing as his Tigers snapped an 11-game losing streak in their opening contest against Perry, a team that had defeated ISD by four points earlier in the year.

—O—

Virginia superintendent Mason Holmes, who made the presentation of trophies following the championship game, got to take home the Sportsmanship award to the Redbirds. Holmes, who is president of the PMSC loop, couldn't find anyone from Virginia when he announced the selection and he said, "I guess I'm the only one here." The judges were asked as to how the selection was made and it was based on this. In its close loss to Petersburg, Virginia lost Gary Reichert early in the fourth quarter on what was believed to have been his fifth foul. But he really only had four! Reichert didn't say a word or show any signs of bitterness and coach John Murray conducted himself in a gentlemanly manner when he asked the scorers if they hadn't made a mistake? It went no further than that and the Redbirds proved they were true sports. One thing or should I say two things that disturbed the judges most were the coaches getting off the bench numerous times on questionable calls and the other was a new yell the cheerleading section has invented. Just before the opposing team shoots a free throw, the rooters chant—Get that rebound—Rebound—Rebound. There should be honor among the yell-leaders!

—O—

If you were coaching and had the pick of the tourney field, just what five boys would compose your starting lineup? First, you would consider height and then try to combine this with shooting ability. Next you would need a good floor general to operate the offensive patterns. We've tried to combine all these abilities in our 10-man tourney selection which consists of Triopia's Earl Dufelmeier, Alan Anderson, Kent Hansmeier; Routt's Fred Curtis, Jack Lawless; Bluffs' Burl Fargo, Lee Fredrick; Petersburg's Don Dawson, John Moats and ISD's Bobby Poncar. There are 13 other players deserving consideration and after a few workouts they could very well break into our top 10. Those receiving special commendation are Triopia's Charles Roegge, Wendell Harbin; Routt's Ed Carroll, Bucky Sullivan, Joe Cors; Bluffs' Jim Cox; Virginia's Gary Reichert, Reg Velten; Chandlerville's Don Fielden, Russ Taylor; Meredosia's Gary Rausch, Clarence Hannel, and Perry's Richard Liehr. We know we've omitted some good boys but the selections are based on tournament play as we don't get to follow their progress all season.

—O—

Neutral fans, who came just to watch basketball, felt that Routt had played its game Thursday night in beating top-seeded Bluffs in a high-scoring battle, 80-73. They felt Routt was a better ball club than its 85-54 loss to a fired-up Triopia quintet in the championship playoff. But Coach Bob Winstead's Rockets were not match for the hustling Trojans, who defensed Routt's attack perfectly. Everyone agreed the better ball club won Friday night although Triopia's first two outings were mediocre, just as there's a lull before the storm. The PMSC tourney title escaped Routt for the first time in three years but the second place winners captured the team scoring crown with 204 points in three games. Bluffs finished with 203 and Triopia with 187 tallies.

—O—

Wonder if PMSC tourney records would indicate the greatest number of points by an individual player in a tournament outing? Lee Fredrick's 37 points against Petersburg in the consolation bout may be a record or mighty close to it. Fredrick put on one of the finest long-range shooting exhibitions this corner has seen in a long time and it was mighty welcomed. We used to rely on the long artillery and most coaches agree there is no defense for a team with a good outshooter that hits with accuracy from 20-30 feet out. Fredrick used a one handed push with no jump to capture the individual scoring race with a total of 74 points. Curtis of Routt was second with 65 tallies followed by Fargo's 56 tallies. Triopia's balanced scoring is a good reason why it has won the PMSC Tournament and 14 games in 16 starts. It's fairly easy to bottle up two or three good men but almost impossible to stop five.

Did you know that —— Dave Bone is looking forward to playing basketball with the Wildcats his junior and senior years ——Gary Little of Jacksonville needs only four points to reach the 1,000 points mark with MacMurray and the Highlander guard should pick them up next weekend at SIU —— Ron Price of the Highlanders is just 17 points off the 1,000 mark —— Little is fifth in the NAIA District 20 free throw percentage with 34 of 41 for an .829 average —— George Danhaus loses only one player from this year's five and he is senior Gary Bangert —— Danhaus claims people think he's kidding when he talks of his hotel room in Champaign during the state playoff. He says if they only knew!!!! Noticing the silver buttons on my blue blazer, Danhaus asked if I was bucking for a doorman's job at his Champaign headquarters? —— The Bluffs mentor informed us that Jim Bels, Griffin coach, would be the basketball coach at Quincy College next year —— Danhaus and Winstead are serious at all times but relax a little before and after the game. When asked what type defense Bluffs was going to use Danhaus replied, "a 3-3 zone with a flanker." Winstead said, "a 2-2-3 zone with the officials as chasers." Neither coaches change their wardrobe while winning —— Winstead noticed a frown on Danhaus' face following the 66-31 win over ISD and the Rocket coach asked what was wrong? Big George said, "Oh, the kids got me in the pool." "What's wrong with that?" quizzed Winstead. "Nothing, but I don't like whiskey and water," George said. To set the record straight, all the participating players go swimming in ISD's pool following their games. —— I heard of one bet concerning the MacMurray-Illinois College contest February 6 and it was even money but the guy taking IC got 26 points. Jack Fairfield reports Jacksonville High is improving rapidly and that the Chapman quintet should be a serious contender by regional playoff time.

Bob Merris, former Journal Courier sports editor, and Bill Ridley, former Taylorville and Illini star, had coffee Friday night at the Bowling Center following the game they worked at the JHS Bowl. Al Miller reports the Center may take on an additional look this summer with 6-8 lanes being linked to the present 14-lane setup. The former IC mentor also wants a plush restaurant which could accomodate banquets, teas and whatever else the eating fan desires.

Coach Bob Winstead reports Routt's game with White Hall Tuesday night will be played in the JHS Bowl with a preliminary beginning at 6:45 p.m. Routt also has rented the Bowl for its date with Farmersville February 17.

Clan Wrestlers Break For Exams

The MacMurray College wrestlers broke for semester examinations last week with a 6-2 dual record under their belts in the Highlanders' first season of regular intercollegiate competition.

Coach Dwaine Marten's grapplers, all but one of whom are in their first year of college wrestling, have notched victories over Bradley University, Augustana College, Millikin University, Illinois College, Elmhurst College, and Westminster College.

The clansmen have dropped matches to Indiana Central College, and Wabash College, but finished a respectable seventh in the tough Knox College Invitational Tournament early in the season.

One Highlander has remained undefeated throughout dual competition. He is Larry Dailey, a Jacksonville sophomore who has picked up eight wins, including three pins, in the 137-pound class.

Gary Bass, heavyweight from Peoria, has compiled a 7-1 record, losing only to Bill Berthin of Wabash. Bass, who previously wrestled only one year in high school, has taken all but one of his victories on pins.

Robbie Williams, 157 pounds, Warsaw, N. Y., a sophomore and the team's only veteran, has amassed a 6-1 record, with two pins to his credit. Scott Engroff, a very promising freshman at 123 pounds, has picked up six wins against two losses, and also has pinned two opponents. Scott is from Natrona Heights, Pa.

Another freshman, Curt Wingerter, 147, Downer's Grove, has won four, lost two, and has shown great improvement in his first year of wrestling. Wingerter has pinned two of his opponents.

Bill Celander, a 130-pound freshman from Peeksville, N. Y., has won three and dropped five matches. Bill Kneebone, 177, Galesburg, has a 2-4 record, as does Bill Weber, Belleville, a 145-pound freshman wrestling at 167. Gene Benedict, 167 or 177, Culver, Ind., has a 1-3 record, and Andy O'Brien, 137, Nassau, Bahamas, has dropped three matches.

Coach Marten is extremely pleased with the progress of the young squad, and feels that if improvement in the remainder of the season is as marked as it has been thus far, some wrestlers have a strong chance of traveling to Golden, Colo., for the NAIA Tournament in March.

The Highlanders' return to action after semesters with a return match at Illinois College, and then travel to Monmouth College for the Monmouth Invitational against Knox College, Bradley University, and the host.

5TH ACE FOR NELSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Veteran Byron Nelson sank the fifth ace of his long career Saturday. His tee shot at the 11th hole dropped in the cup during the San Francisco International Golf Tournament.

Nelson was competing in the third round, with a 144 for the two.

MacMurray Highlanders, 11-4 For The Season, Are Idle For 13 Days

The MacMurray College Highlanders, holders of a mid-season 11-4 record, are out of action for 13 days with semester examinations. Over a four-year period, Coach Bill Wall's MacMurray squads have won 56 and lost 30 of their games.

Last time out the clansmen defeated NAIA independent rival Lewis College 80-60, in a game Coach Wall felt was the squad's best defensive performance of the year. The Highlanders held the high scoring Flyers to 18 field goals in 52 attempts.

On their first semester record, the Highlanders may be considered possible contenders for the post-season NAIA playoff tourney or the NCAA small college tourney.

MacMurray will see action again after semesters in four straight road games, beginning February 4 at Southern Illinois University, Southwestern Branch. February 6, the Highlanders meet cross-town opponent Illinois College in the first basketball game between the two colleges, and then travel to the Chicago area for an all-important double header against Lewis College Friday, Feb. 10, and Illinois Institute of Technology Saturday.

The Highlanders are continuing their tradition of balanced scoring, with two senior guards, Gary Little, 5-9, Jacksonville, and Marv Hohenberger, 6-0, Ayersville, Ohio maintaining a slim lead. Little has 184 points for a 12.3 average, and Hohenberger has 162 for an average of 10.8. The leaders are closely followed by Ron Price, 6-2, Dorchester, with 146 points; and Tom Flynn, 6-1, Canton, 143 points. Don McCarty, 6-2, Pleasant Hill, has 139 points; Roy Hahnfeld, 6-4, Palatine, 119 points; and Larry Krulac, 6-3, St. David, 111 points and 139 rebounds to maintain leadership on the boards over Hahnfeld.

Two clansmen are approaching the 1000 point classification, and should reach it within the next two games. Gary Little now has 996 points in 61 games, though it was necessary for Gary to drop basketball his sophomore year for financial reasons. A business major and physical education minor, Gary married three years ago and is now the father of a live wire six-month-old son, Brad.

Close behind Little is workhorse Ron Price, a graduate of Gillespie High School, with 983 points. A senior business-accounting major who hopes to be a CPA in the near future, Ron has played in all 86 of the Highlanders' ball games. Also outstanding on the baseball field, Price was voted Most Valuable Player by his basketball teammates last year, and was elected co-captain of the baseball squad. He was also honored this year as one of six seniors named to the Order of the Tartan, a senior men's honorary fraternity.

Senior Don McCarty, an industrial technology major, has an outside chance of joining the 1000 point club, with 877 points to his credit in 84 games thus far.

In last week's NAIA District 20 releases, the Highlanders were rated fourth in the district in team offense with a 77.9 point per game average, fourth in team defense, with a 69. average, and fifth in team free throws, with 57.6%. Gary Little was third in individual free throws with 84.3%.

The Highlanders' victories have been over Lincoln University (Mo.), Illinois Wesleyan, Western Illinois, Central College (Mo.), St. Ambrose, Oakland City, McKendree, Augustana, Kansas City University, and Lewis. Illinois Normal, Wartburg, Indiana Central and Wabash have defeated the Clan.

Former MacMurray letterman Jim Brandt, 6-2, Litchfield, and Boyd Osler, a 6-2 sophomore from Bangor, Maine, who showed his outstanding basketball ability through the intramural program, will join the Highlanders second semester, as will Terry Elliott, a freshman from Thomson, Ill., leading scorer in his high school conference, and 6-4 junior John Collins of Crisman, who played freshman ball at the University of Missouri, and was a member of last year's junior varsity squad.

Wisconsin and Loyola played in the nightcap.

John Wessels, experiencing his best game of the season, poured in 29 points to pace the Illini who had lost all eight previous games away from home. Ironically, Notre Dame's only previous road decision had been over Illinois at Indianapolis in the Hoosier Classic a month ago.

The victory was Illinois' fifth against eight losses. The loss evened out the Irish at 8-8.

Illinois' sharpshooting from the free throw line was a decisive factor in its triumph. The Big Ten team dropped 23 and missed only 6. Wessels hit 7 of 9 and Dave Downey, who scored 19 points, converted 9 of 11.

Armand Reo topped Irish scorers with 15 points but fouled out with 8½ minutes left to play.

FRANKLIN — White Hall overcame a two-point difference in the third quarter and hit 17 points the final period to defeat Coach Jim Bower's Flashes here Saturday night, 63-55.

Coach Bill Rendleman's Maroons had a fine first half hitting 52 per cent of their shots but their average suffered in the second half.

Thornton To Play For Winnipeg

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Dick Thornton, Northwestern University's quarterback, said today that he will play for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Western Interprovincial Football Union next fall.

The Big Ten passing ace passed up bids from the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League and the Dallas Texans of the American League. He was sixth draft choice of the Cardinals and 21st of Dallas.

"The offers were all about the same," Thornton said, "but I'm a radio-television major, and I have a ground floor job in the programming department of CJAY, the new Winnipeg TV station.

"I want to get my own sports talent program started, and this opportunity weighed heavily with me."

Thornton, who graduates June 16, said he also has a satisfactory bonus offer, and prefers the open-type Canadian football. "It's my style—passing on the run," he said.

RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

Also re-elected at the annual meeting were vice presidents Clarence Benedict, Mamaroneck, N.Y., and John Winters Jr., Tulsa; Secretary William Ward Foshay, Greenwich, Conn., and Treasurer Bernard Ridder of St. Paul, Minn.

San Francisco has had the National League's earned run leader the last three years—Stu Miller in 1958, Sam Jones in 1959 and Mike McCormick in 1960.

Blueboys Hit Cold Spell In 71-59 Loss

Illinois College knotted the score at 53-all with 11 and a half minutes to play but collected only six points the rest of the way to become Millikin's victim for the second time this season at the westend gymnasium Saturday night, 71-59.

The loss was the 10th in 13 starts for the Merrismen this season. The Big Blue of Decatur notched their eighth win against six setbacks.

Millikin built up a 20 point lead in the first half after overcoming a 6-0 deficit but the Blueboys narrowed the count to 12 points at halftime, 37-25. IC matched Millikin's output in the second half but the scoring lapse plus the loss of Mike Bandy and Bill Schildman on fouls with seven minutes to play cost the Blueboys their scoring and rebounding punch.

Millikin hit 32 per cent the first half and the same figure for the second half. Illinois hit a cold 16 per cent the opening 20 minutes but hit 48 per cent the second half.

Mike Bandy led IC's scoring with 19 points closely followed by Bill Schildman's 18.

Crimsons Roll In 4th Period To Sink Bulldogs

Coach John Chapman's Jacksonville High School Crimsons won their fourth consecutive contest and sixth in 16 outings as they downed the St. Teresa Bulldogs of Decatur, 69-60. The Crimsons had another tremendous scoring fourth quarter and got balanced scoring from the entire squad, while swishing the nets at a .481 clip.

The Crimsons jumped off to a 6-0 lead as the Bulldogs missed the first four shots they took, and Jacksonville popped in three straight. It didn't take St. Teresa long to find the range and with Mike Tracy and Larry Young hitting with consistency, they caught the Jacks at 10-10 with 3:32 left to play in the quarter. Bill Sims garnered a bucket with 40 seconds to go and the Crimsons held an 18-16 lead at the quarter. Both clubs collected six field goals in the first eight minutes, but Jacksonville got two more charity tosses. Chapman's steadily improving club hit 6 of 12 shots from the field for an even 50%. St. Teresa, despite their four misses, finished with 6 out of 15.

Tom Tracy carried the load for the Bulldogs in the second period, as he scored the first five points for the losers and Young began to hit with regularity in the final minutes of the half. Jacksonville began to exhibit a potent fast break, and combined with the sagging 2-1-2 zone, were controlling the boards with consistency, and got three lay-ups in a row from lengths of the floor passes. The Crimsons moved out in front by six with three and a half minutes to the half on a pair of charity tosses by Chip Baldwin, but the Bulldogs got some deft outshooting from their two guards, and pulled to within four at halftime, 31-27.

Tracy got seven of the 11 points scored by the Bulldogs in the second stanza, and collected 11 in the first half. His counterpartner, Decatur's leading scorer, Larry Young, collected nine points in the first two periods but displayed some exacting marksmanship. Jacksonville cooled off in the second period but maintained a 38% shooting average for the two quarters while St. Teresa hit at a 33% mark. Bill Sims led the Crimsons' scoring efforts in the first half with eight points.

Ken Norton picked up his fourth foul to open the third period, and Rick Sweeney spelled him and a twist of fate must have been favoring the Crimsons. Sweeney got the only points that the Jacks made in the first four minutes of the stanza and picked up 11 in the second half.

The Bulldogs moved to within one point at 32-31 with 5:48 to go in the period, and went ahead 32 seconds later on a 15 foot jumper by Young. For the next five minutes it was a rapid race, and the score was tied four times and changed hands 11 different times. The Bulldogs hit on 7 of 12 shots in the eight minutes for a .583 average and Jacksonville went ahead with 12 seconds to go on a 10 footer by Sims for the 46-45 third period score.

St. Teresa opened the final period with three straight points and moved to a 48-46 lead, but Ron Tomhave hit two straight buckets, and Sims, Yates, and Baldwin did some fancy defensive work while stealing the ball three times and the Jacks ran up a six point lead at 54-48.

The Bulldogs took a time out and came back with five straight markers to pull to within one, 54-53. It was at this point that Baldwin, Yates and Sweeney began to hit the basket for Jacksonville and Tomhave and Sims did some fine offensive feeding. The Crimsons steadily moved out in front, first by three, then five, and finally by nine. Their strong defense, rebounding, and extremely overpowering fast break worked to perfection in the last four minutes and the Jacks won going away.

It would be a mistake to single out any individual as the star for the Crimsons because each had a specific job and did it well. Four men scored in double figures for Coach Chapman with Baldwin leading the pack with 16 points. Tracy and Young were outstanding for the Bulldogs, and ripped the nets for 20 and 21 points.

The Crimsons finished the night with 26 field goals in 54 attempts for a fine 48%, while St. Teresa had a creditable 39% on 22 of 57 shots.

Mason City Wallops Havana In Finals, 69-38

HAVANA — Mason City's Huskies claimed their third straight Mason County Tournament championship by dealing Coach Jack Hills' Ducks a stunning blow Saturday night, 69-38.

Havana got off to a terrible start and never recovered as the Huskies romped to their 12th victory in 16 starts. The loss was the sixth for Havana against 10 triumphs.

The Ducks, who had beaten Mason City earlier, 50-36, were without the services of Randy Eaton due to sickness. Havana hit only 28 per cent, 16 of 56 attempts, while the champs hit the cords with regularity, 23 of 52 shots.

Havana and Mason City have now won the county tourney 12 times apiece. This was the 40th annual get-together.

Dennis Beard, who was voted the tourney's most valuable player, led all scorers with 19 points.

ROME—(NEA)—The Italians, being a highly individualistic people, are seldom in complete accord on anything.

They have as many political beliefs as there are varieties of pasta. They don't see eye-to-eye on architecture, art, literature, music, the proper ingredients for a pizza or even what constitutes a beautiful woman.

About the only thing the paisans agree on is boxing. They like it. And they like a new crop of outstanding fighters who have made Italy the foremost country in beak busting today. At the ringside is the only time Italians get together and root for one thing—their favorite scrapper.

Anyone suspecting that the sour science is close to being seriously dead should drop out of the clouds in Rome.

The golfing party headed by Samuel Jackson Snead, returning from Israel, wanted to see Guilio Rinaldi, the Italian light-heavyweight who made Ancient Archie Moore, take a "standing eight count," whatever that is, in winning a 10-round decision.

We were informed that the beautiful new Palazzo Dello Sport and its 15,000 seats, built for the Olympic Games, had been sold out for two days. It required all the wire pulling of Prince Francisco Ruspoli, our host, and Count Guiseppe Sabini to get us in.

Centuries ago the Romans threw people to the lions. Today they shove them into traffic, and the jam going to Palazzo Dello Sport made a Los Angeles freeway tangle look like a backwoods road on an early Sunday morning.

No fewer than 5,000 were turned away from the 10-round match in which Rinaldi, good looking in a rugged sort of way, twice dropped Sonny Ray of Chicago, winning in 10 rounds. The crowd of more than 17,000, including standees, was wildly enthusiastic, chanting "Gui-lio!" in cadence. Gross receipts were about $40,000.

Rino Tommasi, a 31-year-old promoter, had the house scaled a bit higher for the Moore match, paid off on $51,000.

Carlos Ortiz, the Puerto Rican, dropped the world junior welterweight championship to Duilio Loi, an Italian, in Milan last September before the largest assemblage to take in a prize fight anywhere on earth in 1960 — 65,000 who paid $202,000.

More recently, Joe Brown, world lightweight leader, was guaranteed $10,000 when he was dropped and outpointed in 10 rounds by Giordano Compari in Milan. Santi Amonti, a heavyweight, knocked out Donny Fleeman of Texas and had Bert Whitehurst on the deck in boxing the agile Baltimore trial horse to a draw on the Rinaldi-Ray card.

There is substance to the resurgence of the game in Italy.

Sluggish Indiana Beats DePaul In Second Half, 81-78

DePaul, dropping its third consecutive game after winning its first 11, had a 38-31 advantage at the intermission.

Little Jerry Bass and Jimmy Rayl led a Hoosier blitz at the start of the second period. Indiana outscored DePaul 9-1, took the lead at 40-39 and was pretty well in control the rest of the way.

Walt Bellamy, 6 feet 10½, scored 25 points for te Hoosiers and Bass, 5-9½, added 23.

M.C. Thompson and Howie Carl scored 23 points apiece for DePaul.

Indiana, going back to work after a three-week between-semesters layoff, improved its over-all record to 9-3. The Hoosiers won their only two Big Ten starts before the vacation.

Only Minoso Could Do It — Receives Highest Salary Paid By Chisox

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Only Minnie Minoso could do it—receive the biggest salary ever paid by the Chicago White Sox at an age when most players have called it quits.

Minoso is one of those fellows who doesn't quit, and that's one of the reasons which prompted President Bill Veeck to offer Minnie an estimated $50,000.

The previous White Sox high of $45,000 went to second baseman Nellie Fox, who was named the league's most valuable player after the Sox won the 1959 pennant.

Minoso is listed as 37 in the record book. There are those who question his age, but this makes little difference to Minoso. He had a good year in which he batted .311, drove in 105 runs, hit 20 home runs and led the league with 184 hits while playing in all 154 games.

Yet Minoso has had better years. So why the big salary?

It could date back to late last season when the Sox pennant drive was failing to materialize. The hitters weren't hitting, the pitchers weren't pitching—nothing was going right.

To top it all, Minoso injured a leg and the experts wrote that the White Sox had had it. They were right about the Sox, but it wasn't through any fault of Minoso's. Bad leg and all, Minnie continued to play as if the Sox were going to repeat as champions.

He kept rapping game-winning hits. Although he was hobbling on one leg, his refusal to quit was appreciated by Veeck.

Nobody can expect Minnie to have the year he had in 1960, but don't bet against it. If determination is all it takes, Minoso will more than carry his share of the load.

Wilma Rudolph Female Athlete Of The Year

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

On the red clay Olympic track at Rome last summer, long-legged Wilma Rudolph ran away from all opponents and won three Olympic gold medals with almost ridiculous ease.

Saturday she outdistanced the opposition just as easily as female athlete of the year for 1960 in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

In the voting by 129 sports writers and broadcasters throughout the United States, Miss Rudolph's name appeared first on all but 14 ballots.

In the tabulation on a 3-2-1 basis for first, second and third place votes it was no contest. Wilma received 365 points. Chris Von Saltza, another winner of three Olympic gold medals, was second with 126 points. World and Olympic figure skating champion Carol Heiss—now Mrs. Hayes Allan Jenkins—was third with 101.

Miss Rudolph succeeds Maria Bueno of Brazil, 1959 winner of the Wimbledon and U.S. tennis championships, in the role of outstanding woman athlete of the year. In recognition of her feats, Miss Rudolph will receive the Frederic C. Miller Memorial Trophy, given by the Fraternal Order of Eagles at a civic luncheon in Milwaukee Feb. 27.

She also will take possession for a year of the Babe Didrikson Zaharias Trophy, as well as receive a permanent plaque emblematic of that award.

Rafer Johnson, the Olympic decathlon champion, was named male athlete of 1960 last week. He also will be honored at the Milwaukee luncheon.

Miss Rudolph, known as "skeeter" to her friends, is a tall (5-11), thin girl who doesn't believe in hurrying unless she's wearing track shoes. Once she gets them on she's virtually unbeatable. Her feat of winning two individual sprint titles and anchoring a record-breaking relay team stamped her as the outstanding athlete— man or woman—in the Rome games.

Wade Of Rams Traded To Bears In 3-Way Deal

By BEN OLAN
Asstciated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Wade, veteran Los Angeles quarterback who didn'tlike the Rams' way of doing things, Saturday was traded to the Chicago Bears as part of a three-way National Football League deal.

The Rams got defensive halfback Erich Barnes from the Bears, then immediately swapped him to the New York Giants for defensive halfback Lindon Crow, an ex-Southern California player.

The Giants also got guard John Guzik from the Rams and their No. 5 draft choice for 1961. The Giants gave up their No. 1 draft choice to the Rams, but they'll still have a first pick which they acquired previously from the new Minnesota Vikings in a deal for quarterback George Shaw.

The deal was engineered as the NFL's annual meeting came to a close with announcement that the clubs will play a 14-game schedule next season, an increase of two games per team.

Minnesota and Dallas, which became the league's 13th member last year, will oprate as "swing" teams, playing each other twice and meeting each of the other 12 teams once.

Dallas was a "swing" team in 1960, but was placed in the Western conference standings. The 1961 conference affiliations of Dallas and Minnesota will be decided next week, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said.

Wade, who blasted the Rams' bosses in a post-season interview, may wind up in the same situation that he found in Los Angeles.

The onetime Vanderbilt star, a 1952 bonus pick and heir to the Los Angeles No. 1 quarterback job when Norm Van Brocklin was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles in 1958, found himself sharing the job this season with Frank Ryan.

Wade didn't like it and said so publicly.

The 14-game schedule will start Sept. 17 and end Dec. 17.

Directors voted to continue the post-season runner-up game in Miami's Orange Bowl, naming it the Bert Bell Benefit, after the late commissioner.

Fernandez Stops Calhoun In 8th

The end came suddenly in the eighth when Fernandez shifted his attack from body to head. A solid hook had a delayed action effect on Calhoun who grabbed to hold as the full power of the blow took its toll.

The Cuban, fighting as a middleweight for the second time after moving up high in the welter class, quickly went out to finish his man.

More hooks thudded home on Calhoun's chin as the fighter sagged and wobbled. Finally he went down on his back, resting on his elbows while Referee Harry Kessler started the count. Calhoun, dazed and badly shaken started to get up at six and had half risen at seven only to topple forward as he tried to drag himself across the ring toward his own corner.

As Kessler never finished the official count of 10, New York State Athletic Commission officials at ringside said it was a technical knockout.

Calhoun was too slow for the speedy Cuban who had piled up an early lead and was pulling away fast after a Calhoun rally in the third and fourth.

Bob Jones Award For Sportsmanship Won By Joe Carr

NEW YORK (AP) — Ireland's Joe Carr received the Bob Jones award for sportsmanship Saturday and predicted that America's Jackie Nicklaus may bring back an era of amateur supremacy in golf.

"I think Nicklaus unquestionably is the greatest amateur since Jones," the 38-year-old British amateur titleholder said. "I have watched players such as Arnold Palmer, Ken Venturi and Gene Littler jump from the amateur ranks to top places among the professionals.

"There is no reason to believe that Nicklaus should not do equally well—and even better. He is young (20), extremely strong and a great player. I don't think any other golfer in the whole wide world — pro or amateur — could have done what Nicklaus did in The Eisenhower Trophy matches at Merion last year."

In the Eisenhower competition, Nicklaus, from Columbus, Ohio, shot successive rounds of 66-67-68-68 for 269 over the course on which Ben Hogan won the National Open in 1950 with a score of 287.

Jerry Norton of the St. Louis Cardinals led National Football League punters last season with a 45.6 average for 39 punts.

Downstate Prep Notes

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Ron Krick of West Reading, Pa. undoubtedly will be the all-time high school basketball scoring champion. The 6-9 220 pound senior is 17 years of age and entered the season needing 859 points to top the 3,378 recorded by Charles Vaughn of Tamms high school. Krick led little West Reading to two consecutive Class C state championships. Last season he ereased Wilt The Stilt Chamberlain's three year and Don Hennon's four-year state highs. Seventy-five colleges are seeking the touted cager and he wants to spend his college days near home. It appears that Temple and La Salle of Philadelphia have the inside track.

Prep games I would like to see follows — Winchester vs. Pawnee; Springfield vs. Collinsville; Clinton vs. Decatur; Jerseyville vs. Litchfield; Bridgeport vs. Centralia; Flora vs. Harrisburg; Sterling vs. Rock Island; Moline vs. Canton; Edwardsville vs. Shelbyville; Greenville vs. Oblong and Galesburg vs. Quincy.

Illini conference basketball games this week finds Richwoods at Limestone on Friday and three games listed for Saturday night—Pekin at Galesburg; Canton at East Peoria and Kewanee at Richwoods. Limestone and Canton are tied 4-1 for the lead in the loop race while Richwoods is 3-1 and Galesburg is 2-1 for a tight race this season.

Peoria Manuel can clinch a share of the Mid State eight championship this week. The Rams are out to win their 15th in 16 outings against Centralia's Lions. Beardstown continues unbeaten in the Spoon River conference play and the Tigers edged Lewistown 61-59 Tuesday night at Lewistown's gym. Lewistown looked like a different ball club than the one that lost to Cuba's Cardinals Saturday night in the Fulton County tourney at Avon.

Farmington is unbeaten in scheduled games but Coach Tom Zaborac's Cuba five gave the "Farmers" a severe test Tuesday night before losing 60-50 at Farmington's gym. Coach Tuffy Bowen's Farmers beat Valley 84-50 in the County tourney playing their greatest game of the season. Some spectators commented that Farmington had one of the best high school basketball squads they've seen in a long time.

Dick Woods and Jan Davis are currently waging a battle for scoring laurels for Peoria Limestone high. Woods leads with 13.9 average in all games played while Davis is averaging 13.6 points per game. The Rockets to entertain Franklin's Richwoods' Knights Friday night.

Ed Jackson, 6-5 forward for Manual is averaging 21.5 points per game in Mid State eight conference play. He threw in 36 points last week in two loop games to top the conference scorers. The Rams of Manual high are gunning for their 19th straight conference win against Central and the Manualites have not dropped a loop game since Spalding beat them in December of 1959. They lost two games that weekend in conference play but wound up the campaign with 10 straight league triumphs.

JHS Freshmen Win Number 11 Over MacArthur

Coach Al Rosenberger's Jacksonville High School freshmen downed a fine MacArthur of Decatur first year ball club for their eleventh win in thirteen games 64-51. The Crimson yearlings did some fine shooting and rebounded with the taller Generals all afternoon. John Covey led the Jacks with 17 points and almost all of them were from 15 to 20 feet away. Jacksonville led by only four at the half, 33-29, and applied a full court press to open the third quarter. They stole the ball several times and made the best use of the fast break. MacArthur's 17-year-old center, Dabner, topped all scorers with 23 points but didn't have enough help and the Generals suffered their third defeat against eight wins.

Braves Win Over Marquette, 84-68

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley, the nation's No. 3 basketball team, broke open a tight game with a 32-point surge in the final 10 minutes Saturday and overpowered Marquette 84-68 in a nationally televised game.

A burst of balanced scoring shook Bradley loose after Marquette's zone defense made the first half a struggle with the lead changing 12 times before the Braves grabbed a 36-35 lead at intermission.

Al Saunders hit 22 points for Bradley, Chet Walker 21, Tim Robinson 19 and Mack Herndon 16, with most of the scoring flood coming after the Braves had worked into a 52-49 margin with 10 minutes to go.

The victory was the 46th in a row for the Braves at home and boosted their season mark to 14-1.

Don Kojis was high scorer for Marquette with 20 points.

Jack Sanford led National League pitchers in shutouts last season. He tossed six for the San Francisco Giants.

All Five OSU Starters Hit The Double Figures

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Top-ranked and unbeaten Ohio State solidified its Big Ten Conference lead Saturday with a 92-62 rout of Purdue's potent Boilermakers. It was Ohio State's 14th straight win of the campaign.

Purdue's Terry Dischinger led the scoring with 26 points—beating Ohio State's All-America Jerry Lucas by 9 — but his individual brilliance failed to match the all-round team play of the Bucks as all five starters hit for double figures.

Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 team, piled up a 39-26 lead at halftime, and then put it on ice with a 10-point splurge in the first two minutes of the second session.

Strength on both boards gave the Bucks the verdict, Ohio taking 55 rebounds of which Lucas got 17.

Capt. Larry Siegfried paced Ohio in the scoring column with 21 points, Lucas and Mel Nowel getting 17 each, Havlicek 12 and Richie Hoyt 10.

Despite the loss, Purdue's second in five games in the loop, Dischinger wrested the Big Ten scoring lead from Lucas. He lost it last week as he scored only 17 and 19 against Iowa and Northwestern due to an injured hand. But he moved to a 26.4 average with Saturday's televised appearance as Lucas dropped to 26.

Both Lucas and Dischinger were objects of three-man defenses as the opposing coaches tried to halt the two Olympic stars. Lucas, hemmed in by defenders, passed off continually to mates for easy scores as the massed opponents left pathways open to the basket.

The loss just about wrecked any Purdue title hopes, for the Bucks took the crown a year ago with a 13-1 mark and appear more powerful than ever.

Ohio broke away to a 5-0 lead Saturday, allowed Purdue to draw up to a 7-7 and 9-9 tie, and then cracked the game wide open. The Bucks outscored the Boilermakers 33-22 from the field, and crashed 26 of 30 free throws. Lucas made seven charity shots to run his unbroken string to 22.

Northwestern Bows To Minnesota, 66-59

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Minnesota hit 10 straight points at the start of the second half and turned back a Northwesern rally to whip the Wildcats, 66-59, in a Big Ten basketball game Saturday night.

It was Minnesota's second victory over Northwestern this year. Northwestern trailed by seven points with 2½ minites to play and then cut the margin to 61-59 with 56 seconds to go before Dick Erickson scored a layup to put Minnesota safely ahead.

Minnesota, trailing twice in the first half, led at intermission, 35-29. The Gophers made it 45-29 early in the second half before Northwestern began to click.

With a little more than a minute to play, Ralph Wells canned two basket to pull the Wildcats within two points but Erickson's basket and three free throws ended th scoring.

The victory was the third in six conferenc games for Minnesota. Northwestern is now 2-4 in Olg Ten play.

Wells led all scorers with 21 points. Tom McGrann was high for Minnsota with 19.

Wally Osterkorn Arrested, Freed On $10,000 Bail

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Wally (Ox) Osterkorn, former star of professional and college basketball, was freed on $10,000 bail Saturday after demanding an examination on felony charges of first-degree grand larceny and third-degree burglary.

Osterkorn, 32, was arrested at gunpoint Thursday night by a detective investigating an outbreak of burglaries.

The former athlete was silent Saturday at arraignment in Police Court. He was represented by two attorneys. The date for the examination was to be set March 2.

Osterkorn played for the Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball League from 1951 to 1955. He had been a star player at the University of Illinois.

Detective Ralph Camp said a crowbar and a pillow slip, containing jewelry and money, fell from Osterkorn's coat when he raised his hands at Camp's order.

Police said the larceny charge stemmed from the theft of two diamond rings and costume jewelry, with a total value of $195, from the home of Mrs. Evelyn A. Faulkner.

Osterkorn was charged with third-degree burglary in the theft of $2.45 from the home of Maltby Cleveland.

Osterkorn had been free in $3,500 bail since last May, when state police accused him of receiving stolen building materials. That case still is pending.

Camp arrested Osterkorn in the parking lot of a south side bowling alley, near the homes where the thefts were reported.

Harness Racing Has Changed Says Dave Insko, A Trainer, Driver, Owner

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In the not so long ago era of harness racing, most drivers were gray-haired, portly and in their sixties.

The picture has changed vastly since the growth of the sport from the county fairs to the ultra-modern plants like Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceway.

One of the newest to the big time is Delmer Insko, a lithe, short, 29-year-old graduate of the county fairs.

Insko blazed his way to the top last year, driving 156 winners for the national championship. At 5-5 and 125 pounds, he looks like a jockey of the thoroughbreds.

Most drivers also are trainers and some are owners. Delmer is all three.

"To get a chance to drive, you've got to have the horses," he explained. "You train them and you drive them. That's why it was so difficult for anyone to break into the game before the spread of the sport with the advent of pari-mutual betting.

"Today there is much more opportunity, but you still need the breaks to make good. When you do, everything becomes so much easier.

"Once I had trouble getting horses. Now I have to turn some down. I don't want any more than I can handle properly. I wanted to limit myself to 50 head this year, but I've got 58 in training now and I'll take over another 15 on the first of March."

Insko doesn't do it all by himself. He has four "second trainers" under him, including his 20-year-old brother, Delbert. Delbert will race 25 to 30 of them in Chicago for the whole season this year.

The pint-sized sulky jockey was a busy man last year.

"I had 942 races," he said in an interview. "I believe that's a record for one year. Most of them were on 'useful' horses—not the big money winners. I haven't had a chance at many of the top stock, because they are driven by their trainers.

"This year I may get a chance. I've got a good 2-year-old filly pacer, Poplar Nicki, owned by Somerfield and Hoffman of New York. She's done 2:01 3-5 (for the mile). Then I have a trotting filly that hasn't raced, named Featherfoot. I have big hopes for her. She's eligible for the Hambletonian and other big ones. I've never raced in the Hambletonian, and that's one of my ambitions."

Insko said most of the standardbreds he trains and rides are not owned by him.

"It's too big an investment to handle," he said.

Until Yonkers opens March 20, Delmer will be busy training most of his string at his farm at South Beloit, Ill. He has 17 head at Macon, Ga.

"I've got a half mile track on the farm," he said. "It's a little cold in Illinois, but it's easier to get the horses ready for March racing when they train in the north. If you take them south, it takes time to get them acclimated."

Prospect Tastes First Defeat; Collinsville Only Unbeaten Squad

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Prospect High School fell before Wheaton Friday, 62-60, leaving Collinsville the only unbeaten basketball power among the 16 ranking teams in Illinois.

Prospect had won 17 in a row and was ranked second only to Collinsville's Kahoks in the Associated Press poll.

One of Prospect's conquests early this season was Wheaton. Wheaton fell 17 points short of victory then.

With only six games to go, Collinsville's repeat win over East St. Louis, 78-54, gave the Kahoks another shove forward that made them look unstoppable. It was the 17th Collinsville win.

Of the six teams remaining on the Collinsville schedule, only Lincoln of East St. Louis has not met and fallen before the Kahoks.

Flora, ranked 15th in the poll, was upset by Lawrenceville 36-32. Flora, beaten before only by Bridgeport, once whipped Lawrenceville 77-30.

Centralia, Rockford East, Springfield and Peoria Manual grabbed more laurels. All have been beaten once.

Centralia, winner of 17 in a row since its opening loss to Pinckneyville, swept over a high hurdle in topping Herrin 62-59. Centralia won 55-43 in a first encounter with the dogged South Seven rival.

Rockford East's standing in the Big Eight jumped as East walloped up-and-coming Elgin 56-36, and Freeport narrowly turned back La Salle-Peru, 71-70.

Springfield's second meeting with Lincoln resulted in another near-doubling of the score, 62-32. The Senators won the first time 44-20.

Peoria Manual pocketed a share of the Mid-State Eight championship for sure by stopping Peoria Central 50-44.

Clinton beat University High of Normal 82-60. Bridgeport hammered Salem 90-68. Thornton of Harvey stopped Argo 65-52. These winners also are among the once-beaten.

Ranked teams that have fallen twice, Moline and Sterling, both counted new triumphs. Moline overcame Davenport Central 67-52 and Sterling checked Rock Falls 75-43.

Danville Schlarman, its record marred by only three losses, added Rantoul to its string of 13 victims, outscoring Rantoul 53-32.

In other games, Monmouth walloped Macomb 71-49; Proviso East beat Evanston 51-24; Farmington beat Metamora 70-42 and Waukegan crushed Highland Park 60-28.

MOSCOW JUMPER CLEARS 7' 4½"

LENINGRAD (AP) — Valery Brumel, Moscow student, leaped higher than John Thomas' world and indoor high jump records Saturday when he cleared 7 feet, 4½ inches, according to Tass news agency.

The jump, made indoors at the Winter Stadium here, topped Thomas' indoor mark of 7-2½ and his outdoor record of 7-3½.

Brumel, runner-up to countryman Robert Shavlakadze in last summer's Olympics in which Thomas finished third, leaves early next month for the United States, where he'll meet the Boston University ace in a series of meets.

Quarterback Sandy Stephens of Minnesota intercepted four passes during the Big Ten season. He returned them 114 yards.

Bowling Center To Hold Parent - Child Tournament

Al Miller, proprietor of the Jacksonville Bowling Center, announced Saturday the plans for a Parent-Child Bowling Tournament to be held Feb. 11, 12 and 18. Any parent, mother or father, regardless of age, may participate with their son or daughter (through junior high age).

The parent and child must bowl four games each in the tournament and only two games at a time which is limited due to the age of the child. On Saturday the 11th, the lanes are available on the hour starting at 11:00 a.m. and continuing through 5:00 p.m. Sunday from 12 through five, and from 11 till five Saturday the 18th.

Participants may select any four hours of the dates above and the Center will assign two from the four. All Saturday dates will be filled before using Sunday times.

If a parent or child does not have an average they must bowl nine games before tournament starts in order to establish an average. Seventy-five per cent handicap rule will prevail and the highest scores, both handicap and scratch, will receive trophies. An entry fee of 80 cents per person must accompany entry form and bowling fees will be paid at time of bowling. The bowling fee is $1.80 per person (45 cents a game for four games).

Cassius M. Clay Topic Of Roundtable Friday

The story of Cassius M. Clay of Kentucky, ambassador to Russia, and his impact on the conduct of the Civil War will be the feature of the February meeting of the Jacksonville Civil War Roundtable.

The program will be given at Tanner Library, Illinois College, at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 3. Members who wish to have dinner at Baxter Hall an hour earlier may make reservations with Jack Kurtz, president, or Ernest L. Hoagland, secretary.

The program will consist of phonographic recordings of an address made three years ago by Judge Townsend of Lexington, Ky., when he appeared before the Chicago Civil War Roundtable.

Cassius M. Clay, a cousin of Henry Clay, was an energetic personality. He was at home in drawing rooms, diplomatic chambers, cockfighting pits and duelling fields. When he was in his 70's the governor of Kentucky had to call out the militia to help the county sheriff serve a warrant on him.

He was an abolitionist and a fiery speaker. He made two talks in Jacksonville, before and during the Civil War, that attracted nearly every man in the county.

As an ambassador, some historians place him second only to Benjamin Franklin. In the days when England and France were considering the recognition of the Confederacy, the Russian fleet — through Clay's influence—stood at the gates of New York harbor, plainly telling everyone "Come on, if you so desire."

In those days Russia was the best friend the Union had.

Judge Townsend is now an elderly practicing attorney in Lexington, not too far from the decaying ruins of Clay's plantation residence. His address before the Chicago group has been repeated throughout the English speaking world.

All men interested in Civil War history are invited to attend Friday evening's meeting.

You Can Get Better Grades In School With Help Of Pointers From An Expert

The modern way to meet a real difficulty in an important matter is to call in an expert.

With many youngsters having difficulties, as always, in the matter of grades—which are of paramount importance these days—we have called in an expert for you.

He is Prof. Leslie J. Nason, a specialist in getting better grades.

His series, headlined "You CAN Get Better Grades," will appear daily starting in the Courier Monday and Journal Tuesday.

Getting good grades isn't just a matter of intelligence, Dr. Nason asserts, nor even of knowledge alone. To a considerable extent it's a matter of technique. There are different techniques for different subjects.

Subject by subject, Dr. Nason shows YOU how to get better grades, or how to help your child get them.

Dr. Nason is a professor in the University of Southern California's school of education. He is accustomed to producing results. His experiments with learning techniques have focused the attention of educators. They work.

Take the case of the failing fraternity.

It was losing 50 per cent of its pledges because they failed to make a "C" average. The sponsor called in Dr. Nason to tell them how to make better grades.

That was two years ago. Since then, the fraternity, one of the prominent Greek letter groups at the University of Southern California, has lost only two out of 38 pledges because of poor grades.

40 Year's Experience

Dr. Nason has worked in the teaching field 40 years as math, science, and engineering instructor and as special consultant on study methods.

He began his teaching career in 1956 while still a senior at Central High School in Grand Rapids, Mich. He held an instructor's certificate and taught in a junior high school.

Following a term of duty (1917-1919) with the 16th U. S. Calvary, he enrolled in Michigan State College. He graduated with honors in 1923 with a B. S. in engineering and higher grades than any engineering student had made at Michigan State in 10 years.

He began teaching that same year at East Lansing High School, then went to California high schools and colleges, where he acquired a reputation for coming up with practical solutions on educational problems. It was a gift he applied to individual students with some striking results. The head counsellor of the college began sending him the tough cases.

During World War II the government put Nason's talent to work in the Navy's officer and pilot-training programs. Between 1943 and 1940 he supervised V-12 and V-5 training, his duties taking him to 25 of the nation's college campuses. It was his job to show young men how to do three semesters of work in two—how to work efficiently and avoid cracking up under the intensive, vacationless 12-month study period.

The success of V-12 and V-5 training was one of the miracles of the crash program of the war years.

After the war he went back to Long Beach City College, then took sabbatical, got his doctorate at the University of Southern California, and soon started to teach there in the school of education.

He likes to joke about the length of the title of his doctoral thesis: "Patterns of Circumstances Associated with Academic Achievement of High School Students of Superior Ability."

Outstanding Contribution

Actually, the thesis was a practical, helpless study indicating the factors that contribute to good grades in school. Educators consider it an outstanding piece of work in the field.

LESLIE J. NASON, Ph, Ed.

Normally, theses go on the library shelf in their typed form to gather dust. Dr. Nason's is the only education thesis published in the past five years at U.S.C. The monograph based on his thesis was cited in 1957 as the outstanding publication of that year.

Since 1941 Dr. Nason has been conducting a clinic for lagging students in his hours outside the classroom. Hundreds of college, high school, and grade school students have come to him, or been brought to him by their parents.

He never turns down a case if the student answers yes to the question: "Do you really want to help yourself and let me help you do better?"

The student who answers yes and accepts Dr. Nason's guidance goes back to school and makes better grades. He has not had a failure yet!

His successful methods and principles of learning are drawing more and more attention as this era of scholarship makes its severe and exacting demands.

In "You CAN Get Better Grades" Dr. Nason explains:

How to work both swiftly and accurately.

How to read for maximum meaning.

How to organize and write class papers.

How to improve your handwriting.

How to solve math problems.

Seek Pair Who Robbed Grocery Store In Jersey

JERSEYVILLE — Saturday night authorities had not apprehended the youthful armed bandit and his companion who held up the Red and White supermarket here at closing time Friday night. Over $240 in cash and a number of checks were taken from the safe of the L. I. Grocery, Inc. located on South State street in Jerseyville on highway 67A.

Just at closing time, about 8:30 p.m. a hatless, dark haired young man about 21 entered the store and forced clerk John Lawson, 20, at gunpoint to open the store's safe.

There were only four people in the store at the time, Lawson, Emmett Griffin, the butcher working some distance away at his meat counter, Virgil Griffin, young high school student and part-time employee also busy with counter work and not near the safe in the large market and the store manager, Earl Bishop, unaware of the proceedings while busy at his desk in the office.

The robbery took only a few minutes and the gunman made a hasty retreat, obviously necessary as he was wearing only a light colored suitcoat, over a white dress shirt and dark trousers, in zero temperatures.

The thief's companion was described as a hawknosed thin blond man driving the get-away car that had been noticed loitering in the vicinity. The car is believed to have been a Ford two tone, possibly green or dark blue.

Police were notified of the robbery immediately after the men fled and deducted the thieves were transients. Both were white men.

Bright Omen

Historians sometimes say that the tone of a new presidential administration is largely set in its first days of power. If that is true, then the promise of the next four years is for vigorous action and eloquently forceful leadership.

President Kennedy set that mood in his first crowded weekend in office. His busy round of conferences, issuance of the first executive orders, his message to Soviet Premier Khrushchev — all these seemed to flow naturally from his dramatic inaugural address.

The proof is, of course, in the doing. It is much too early to be looking for major accomplishment from him and his administration. In both the foreign and domestic realm, he has many stout obstacles to surmount if he would set this country on the new high road.

But perhaps the meaningful thing right now is that he is behaving like a man who truly believes the barriers can be leaped. More than that, he is acting like a man who thinks that if he issues the call for action, for sacrifice, the people of this nation will follow without question.

His inaugural speech was remarkable for many things. Not the least of these is the fact that he spent no time dwelling upon the greatness of America. It clearly underscored all he said but he left it substantially unspoken.

He credited Americans with knowing their greatness. He centered his attention on the uses of that greatness, to make the world a better and safer place for all people to live in.

And he asked his fellow citizens to consider what they might do to enlarge our strength and stature, rather than to take from it.

Though he sounded a powerful note of hope—hope for peace and disarmament, hope for the uplift of the struggling peoples of the globe, hope that the wonders of mankind may be turned to its benefit instead of its destruction —Kennedy rooted his appeals in the grim realities of the age.

The summons he issued to the American people, a call which is plainly intended to reach beyond all political boundaries, was for us to "bear the burden of a long twilight struggle, year in and year out."

Thus, as he embarks on his difficult path, a new President moves with no illusions. But he brings to his tasks the strong urgency of energetic youth, and many early signs of high competence.

For the sake of us all Americans in both parties and our friends abroad wish that the promise he gives is fulfilled.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy, during the campaign, promised "action" if elected. So far the record shows he meant what he said.

In his first week in office he began work on disarmament, had a hand in settling a strike, acted to help depressed areas and the Congo, moved in other directions, and may have helped in getting Russia to release two captured U.S. fliers.

During the campaign, Oct. 15, he said: "We must let Mr. Khrushchev know we are permitting no expansion of his foothold in our hemisphere."

He let Khrushchev know it Jan. 20, the day he became President, in his inaugural address: "Let all our (Latin American) neighbors know we shall join with them to oppose aggression or subversion anywhere in the Americas."

But during the campaign, Oct. 7, he also said: "In my judgment we should follow the advice of Theodore Roosevelt: Be strong . . . and speak softly."

Although he stiff-armed Khrushchev in the inaugural talk, he didn't rough him up, talked of cooperation and beginning "anew." This was fairly soft talk.

Khrushchev seemed to respond: He released two captured American fliers, only survivors of the RB47 plane shot down last July 1 by a Russian fighter.

In turn, Kennedy said he was continuing the ban on U.S. spy flight over Russia.

Kennedy said Oct. 12: "We must use our surpluses and our technology to meet the critical African need for food."

He followed through at his first news conference, Jan. 26, with this: "The United States government has decided to increase substantially its contribution toward relieving famine in the Congo."

On Sept. 19 Kennedy, critical of the Taft-Hartley Act's labor-strike injunction, its main strike-settling instrument, said:

"Why should we be armed only with the power to enjoin labor when, there is a whole arsenal of other weapons available . . . including mediation."

On Jan. 21, the day after being sworn in, Kennedy agreed to have his new secretary of labor, Arthur Goldberg, go to New York to try to settle a two-week old damaging harbor strike. It was settled over the weekend.

On Oct. 5, Kennedy said: "We must get moving on the problem of depressed areas."

On Jan. 21, the day after becoming President, Kennedy in his first executive order started carrying out this campaign pledge by directing increased distribution of free food to needy families in depressed areas.

During the campaign Kennedy promised a code of ethics for government employes. Two days after taking office he appointed three law professors to advise him on ethics and conflict of interests in government.

On Sept. 10 he said peace "requires an America that is planning, preparing and striving for disarmament."

Tuesday, Jan. 24, he began his administration's study of disarmament in a White House conference with his top advisors on that subject.

In his speech accepting the Democratic presidential nomination last July 15, Kennedy promised to do something about the "blight" which "has descended on our regulatory agencies (like the Federal Communications Commission and Federal Power Commission)."

He acted with sharp speed on this by asking James M. Landis, former dean of the Harvard Law School, to investigate the agencies and report on remedies. Landis turned in a blistering report.

On Dec. 29, or 22 days before taking office, Kennedy assigned Landis the job of his special assistant in reforming the agencies.

But Kennedy made campaign promises in many fields — like housing, education, depressed areas, and the economy — and appointed study groups to make recommendations to him by the time he became President.

They did. So he's prepared to act on them with Congress. If what has happened in Kennedy's first week is typical of how he intends to perform throughout his presidency, he and the country will have a busy four years.

FINDING THE WAY

Quality of Daily Heroism

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written For NEA

A few weeks ago the giant aircraft carrier, USS Constellation, burned at her fitting-out dock. Within a few hours the humdrum of an ordinary day's work was filled with tales of extraordinary heroism. Among these was the incident involving a clergyman who served as a chaplain for a fire department.

He pulled a man from the danger of fire and smoke and breathed into his lungs until the man was safely removed to the hospital.

Once again the old dictionary definition of a hero leaped into significance: "A hero is one who has a certain role in an admirable action which he plays in a remarkable way."

That's not very poetic, but then heroes are not easily discernible. They come in assorted sizes and colors. They may seem to be prosaic until that moment which Hemingway described as "grace under pressure" arrives, and then they incarnate the heroic.

Translate this same courage into every day's affairs and you have the quality of heroism demanded of each of us. It is not only a president who assumed a dedication of mind and energy this week; it is a citizenry, too, which needs to exhibit this "grace under pressure."

No people, unwilling to be heroic, has a right to demand heroism of its leaders. Every elected official who honestly dedicates himself to an inspiring leadership has a right to demand this same quality of his country.

President Kennedy described some of these pressures in his book, "Profiles of Courage."

They are not as easily discernible as the flames and smoke of the burning ship. But they are there. There are such pressures as the lure to go along with the crowd or the political necessity to get reelected.

In the time when he confronts the needs of compromise he will have to make decisions which affect the destinies of millions. Said the President, long before he had announced his decision to run:

"We can compromise our political positions but not ourselves. We can resolve the clash of interests without conceding our ideals.

"And even the necessity for the right kind of compromise does not eliminate the need for those idealists and reformers who keep our compromises moving ahead, who prevent all political decisions from meeting the description supplied by Shaw: 'smirched with compromise, rotted with opportunism, stretched out of shape with wire-pulling and putrefied by permeation.' "

In these days the President and his colleagues assume enormous responsibilities. We will all need to pray that we have the needed grace for the pressures upon us. There is a pressure of outer affairs which C. P. Snow described as "the danger in which we have all been brought up to think that we had all the time in the world. We have very little time. So little that I dare not guess at it."

It is the pressure of an inner faith which knows this same lack of time and so demands that "we lay aside every weight that so easily besets us and run with patience that race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and the finisher of our faith."

Then it may turn out that we can play a certain role that has been thrust upon us by history and to do it in an admirable way.

Communication

Office of the Fire Chief,
Jacksonville, Ill.

To The Editor
Jacksonville Journal Courier,
Dear Sir:

In answer to the communication of Mrs. Duncan, of Winchester, Illinois:

It is a tradition, and probably always will be, that Firemen are called to rescue pets. This we shall continue to do to the best of our abilities. Most of the Members of the Jacksonville Fire Department have pets of their own (or their children have) and I am confident that not a single one of them would mistreat any animal.

I give you my word, we shall continue rescue efforts of any distressed animal or person, and that there will be no inhumane treatment.

This is a personal invitation for Mrs. Duncan to stop in at our Fire Headquarters some time, and visit with us.

Sincerely,
Byron Holkenbrink.

Status Symbol: Crushed Toe 'Earned' at Inaugural Ball

By JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON— (NEA) — Inauguration afterthoughts:

● The preinauguration snowstorm revolutionized cocktail party small talk. It caused so many problems that you can now talk continually about the weather and not be considered a bore.

● President Kennedy's arrival at all five inaugural balls caused mob scenes that left scores of well-wishers nursing mashed toes and scraped shins. If this sort of enthusiasm continues, the Secret Service will have to organize a special squad to protect the public from the President.

● Contrary to expectations, not a single inaugural souvenir manufacturer came up with anything even remotely resembling a touch football.

● And someone should pass a law to stop teen-agers from squealing at new Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

A REALLY LAVISH wingding was that which the Texas State Society threw for Vice President Lyndon Johnson. The party took up the entire Statler-Hilton mezzanine.

For three hours, hundreds of guests, some wearing black cowboy boots with their tuxedoes, drank gallons of bourbon and munched roast beef sandwiches, the only food served.

Waiters carved the roasts in Texas-size chunks. Some servings were so large that four slices of bread were needed to hold them.

THE FIRST BIG BLOWOUT of inauguration week also turned out to be the most fragrant. Los Angeles millionaire Bart Lytton, who tossed the buffet for the Kennedys, decorated his hotel party suite with $1,000 worth of flowers.

AS FORMER PRESIDENT Harry Truman walked up the two flights of steps to the Texas party, someone hollered:

"Mr. Truman, isn't climbing all those stairs a little hard on a man your age?"

Replied a jovial Truman, "Well, if you're going to be a character, you have to pay the price."

AS EXPECTED, GUARDING Kennedy and Johnson during the inaugural events had its share of headaches. For instance, two nights before his inauguration, Johnson slipped into the Shoreham Hotel Blue Room to eat a quiet dinner with friends.

He arrived unnoticed during the floor show, and sat down at a rear table. The MC announced:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have just learned the vice president-elect is here. Let's have the spotlight on his table, please."

Johnson graciously took a bow. His three Secret Service bodyguards did a slow burn.

Immediately after the lights went out for the next act, the Johnson party canceled their order, and went to a private room where sandwiches were served.

The explanation given for Johnson's abrupt departure was that he had eaten at two earlier receptions.

AT THE BIG INAUGURAL gala, actor Tony Curtis explained the Electoral College like this:

But baldheaded Jimmy Durante received the biggest laugh when he appeared wearing a Kennedy-style red toupee.

"Isn't the coronation thrilling?"

ARRIVING AT HIS FIFTH and last inaugural ball, President Kennedy announced:

"Tonight I have visited five separate balls, and my greatest ambition is to get a chance to see somebody dance."

The band immediately started playing, and the crowd gave a command performance.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In television, he can laugh last who gets good ratings. And so Gardner McKay is entitled to a healthy chuckle.

No laughing boy is McKay, the lean, lanky star of "Adventures in Paradise." He's intent and serious, and these qualities may have helped save the ABC hour from sinking in the TV typhoon.

Talking to McKay is somewhat of an adventure in itself. You may have to trail him from stage to stage because 20th-Fox TV schedules wait for no man. You may also wonder at times whether he is talking to you, himself or his omnipresent shaggy dog, since he is given to asides and comments. I stuck it out and learned some things about his conquest of oblivion.

"The show is going great now," he observed. "I heard we made it to the top 10 in ratings. That's good. But it still takes work, work, work to keep up the quality. I feel we're dipping into a little valley now. Gotta stop it."

"I've had rough times," he continued. "I was really led to the slaughter at the first of these series. Here I was, a big, handsome pretty boy all set up ready to be knocked down. I was a real target."

He added: "Sure, the criticism hurt. It must have, though I didn't realize it at the time. I had a breakdown, partly from overwork —I had worked from May until December without a day off—partly from the pressure. I threw an armchair at the camera.

"Everybody got scared. I asked for a few days off and they gave it to me. I went up to Carmel and got a room with a fireplace. Those few days meant a lot to me. When I came back, I was ready to work."

McKay said he would like to do 100 shows and then quit. What then? I don't know if any series star can make it in features. We're seen to death. But my brother and I have a book we want to film, about sailing around the Horn. We might do it some day."

Church Programs Add to Well-Being of Golden Agers

BY MARIE DAERR

"The concern of friends, and their practical help, can often tide an older person over an illness and get him on his feet again — the best kind of therapy.

"As he becomes older and his contacts more limited, this friendly visiting from the people of his religious fellowship takes on added importance."

This is just one of the church programs to help older people that are described in a background paper on "Services of Religious Groups for the Aging," prepared for the White House Conference on Aging. Material was gathered by the conference's committee on religion and aging, headed by Msgr. Raymond J. Gallagher.

What churches can mean to older people is indicated by this statement:

"The medical profession has been very vocal in agreeing that programs of the churches and synagogues can do much to keep an older person functioning happily and usefully in a normal community pattern."

Other practical helps the committee describes:

● Using experienced older members in part-time jobs in financial administration, building supervision, landscape, gardening, public relations, etc.

● Launching employment exchanges, with perhaps an older person providing transportation in return for a sewing job, or painting a room in return for garden work.

● Organizing fellowship groups with lectures for older people. When middle-age groups are invited to join in, this becomes a subtle kind of preretirement counseling. In one church, a retired graduate nurse volunteered to give older shutins or their families advice on health care.

● Giving cautions about such things as fraudulent practices and information on how medical, home nursing, psychiatric, dental, foot-care, homemaker services can be had.

● Setting up a "library" of sickroom equipment to loan to people who need the items.

In a section on the Protestant Church, the committee expressed concern that very little has been done at the graduate seminary level to train the oncoming generation of pastors and church workers to deal with the "new generation" which medical science has added to our social structure.

Ministers who become interested in gerontology "pick up" a knowledge of the subject where they can find it, the committee reported.

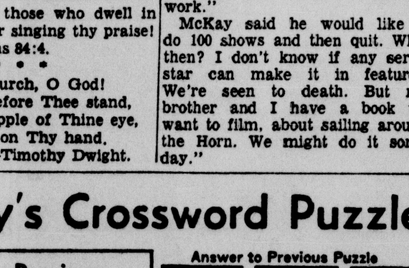
Answer to Previous Puzzle



matter of FACT

Americans love large colorful musicals judging from the way people lined up for "Oklahoma" and "South Pacific." For a real extravaganza it would be hard to beat the one put on in staid Boston in 1872. Patrick Gilmore led an orchestra and chorus of 22,000. For the Anvil Chorus, 200 Boston firemen pounded real anvils. It brought the crowd of forty thousand to its feet.

Roll Out the Cabbage

GAYNOR MADDOX

GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Green—February list of plentiful foods is headlined by cabbage. But the big news is that a lot of it is green like spring. The greener the leaves the more nutrition for your money, remember.

These early spring cabbages, now piled high in your market, are not so firm as the white face cabbages from storage, which are used mainly for kraut and pickles. Nor will they keep so long. But they are tender, great for salads, perfect for quick cooking, very inexpensive and a nutrition trove. Select those that are heavy for their size, and free from insect injuries and bruises.

Red—Reddish-purple cabbage is plentiful, too. It is rarely used cooked but goes into salads for color and consistency contrast. Some winds up in the pickle jar.

The so-called 'domestic" cabbage, available until July, is green, not too compact, with pointed, rounded or drum-shaped head. The "Danish" type, now on the market, is either green or white, with overlapping leaves on the head.

Buy your cabbage by the pound, not by the head. A small head weighs under 2 pounds; a medium head from 2 to under 5 pounds, and a large head up to 5 pounds.

Yellow—Onions are budget news for February, also. For strong flavor, select the yellow or globe variety. That's for soups and stews and other dishes where you want your onions to speak out manfully. But for the less assertive, more feminine onion influence, select the Bermuda or sweet Spanish type. If you have any doubt, ask a self-respecting hamburger.

Good onions are bright, clean and hard. If a green stem has begun to develop, don't buy them. Or if they are moist at the neck, or if any decay appears on the outer scale, throw them back.

Soybeans Helped By Molybdenum At Carlinville

URBANA—No widespread benefits are likely in Illinois from treating soybeans with molybdenum, a University of Illinois agronomist reported last week.

A. L. Lang, speaking before the annual Illinois Custom Spray Operators' Training School, cautioned, however, that research data are not sufficient to make specific and detailed local recommendations.

Lang reported that field tests were conducted on five experiment fields in 1960. Except for one field, the results showed no positive or negative effects from the molybdenum treatment.

At the Carlinville field, however, all molybdenum-treated plots averaged about 3 bushels an acre more than untreated plots. The Illinois soil scientists are now interested in making further chemical tests of the soil and the soybean seed to see whether they can identify the cause of this yield increase. On this field there seemed to be no relation between plots with lime, no lime or other fertility treatments.

Lang also reported survey results from 196 farmers. They showed that 47 increased their yields from using molybdenum-treated seed, 63 had no difference in yields and the rest had no fair comparison because they treated the whole field and left no check. Those who reported higher yields had increases of ½ to 4 bushels an acre for the molybdenum treatment.

Lang also reported that in 1960 Indiana tests at five locations molybdenum treatment failed to affect either growth or yield. Chemical analysis of the beans at the U.S. Regional Soybean Laboratory at Urbana showed no effect on the percent of protein or oil or a result of the treatment.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

Dick Andrews, a native of Nebraska, schooled in Iowa and now at Dixon Springs, has picked up the name of "Trapper Dick," because that's actually what he does—trap. A few of the animals Dick has caught in his traps are coon, possum, weasel, mink, skunk, ground hog, fox, squirrel, rabbit, mice, rats and moles. He has also caught turtles, snakes, lizards and salamanders.

Well, now, trapping seems like an unusual activity on the Station—a Station primarily concerned with pasture and livestock production. But the trapping operation does tie in with livestock health. You see, Dick is working under Dr. Ferris, College of Veterinary Medicine, in an effort to learn the incidence in wildlife of a disease called leptospirosis.

What Is Lepto?

Leptospirosis—"lepto" for short—is of real economic importance to Illinois livestock producers, especially cattle men. Many Illinois cattle are infected. Among the symptoms are arbortions, elevated temperatures and bloody urine. Infected cattle lose weight and go off feed. The disease affects all age groups of cattle, calves, yearlings, cows, steers and bulls.

Low In Trapped Animals

From each animal trapped, blood, kidney, spleen, liver and urine samples are obtained for laboratory analysis to determine whether or not the disease organism is present. Dick reports that, of the hundreds of animals caught, very few isolations of the disease have been made.

Grant of Funds

This work that Dr. Ferris and Dick are engaged in is made possible through a grant of funds from the National Institute of Health. And the reason, as Dick pointed out, for carrying on the study at Dixon Springs is not that leptospirosis is any more prevalent in southern Illinois than in other parts of the state, but that here at the Station large numbers of cattle are subject to regular and frequent health checks. Frequent blood sampling of cows in the herd makes it possible to determine approximately when and where an outbreak of "lepto" occurred. Knowing this, Dick can then limit his trapping operations to that area. Well, that makes good sense; it increases the possibility of appraising the involvement or non-involvement of wildlife in transmitting the disease. From time to time we'll try to keep you posted on the findings of Dick, the Trapper.

Cattle Days and Sheep Days

Coming events on the Station are Cattle Days during the week of February 6 and Sheep Day on Feb. 15. For Cattle Days, different counties are scheduled on each of the five days as follows: February 6—open to all counties not otherwise scheduled; February 7—Massac, Pope, Hardin, Saline, Gallatin and Williamson; February 8—Johnson, Pulaski, Alexander, Jackson, Perry and Wabash; February 9—Randolph, Franklin, Washington, Edwards and Union; and February 10—Jefferson, Wayne, Hamilton and White.

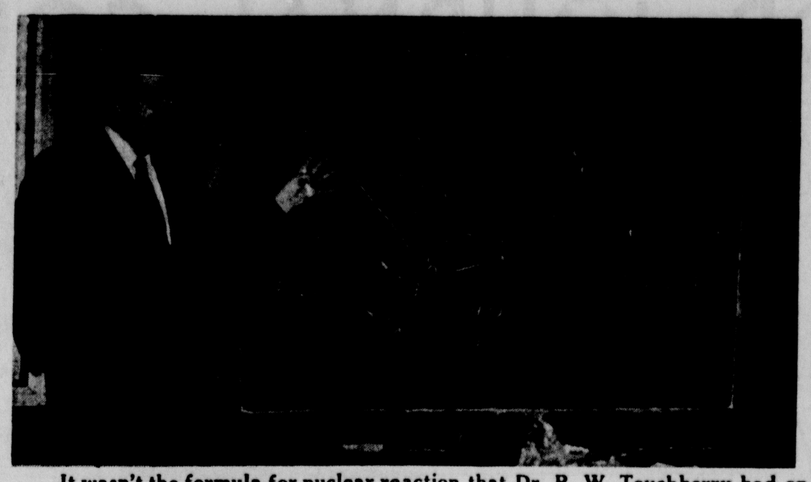
Dairymen Study Herd Care At Pittsfield



It wasn't the formula for nuclear reaction that Dr. R. W. Touchberry had on the blackboard when he addressed dairymen of west central Illinois assembled in Pittsfield. Rather, it's a formula to ascertain the ability of bulls to transmit desirable characteristics to their daughters and granddaughters.

Early recognition of such sires is extremely important. Through artificial insemination each such sire, if found young, could transmit his particular desirable characteristics to literally millions of progeny.

Genetics Fascinate Herdsmen

Dairymen, the few that are still in the business, are extremely skilled men.

Now they are interested in cows with inherent characteristics of the highest quality.

The small group of them who gathered at the Pike County Farm Bureau Tuesday showed peak interest in what most men would term a highly-complicated discussion in genetics.

Tests And Indexes

The speaker was Dr. R. W. Touchberry of the U.I. dairy department. He discussed "Progeny Tests and Sire Indexes." Among the latter he enumerated "the daughter average," "the daughter-dam comparison," "the equal-parent comparison," and the more recent "stablemate comparison."

"The biggest obstacle to obtaining an unbiased estimate of a dairy sire's breeding value is environmental variation," he asserted, as he outlined a formula for determining the true value of a bull in minimum time. This involves placing his daughters in 20 to 30 different herds and comparing her performance with her stable mates.

The Human Element

But he warned:

"Because all indexes are functions of averages of the records of specified groups of animals, all indexes are subject to manipulation; consequently the validity of all indexes depend on the integrity of the person or organization making the proof."

Dr. J. H. Byers spoke on "Current Feeding Problems" and Dr. N. L. VanDemark spoke on the care of the young replacements.

With heifers, Van Demark stated, good growth and early calving are essential for maximal lifetime production. An increase of 100 pounds of body weight at first calving can mean an increase of 300 to 700 pounds of milk per lactation.

Regular Calving: Key

"Regular and repeated calvings are essential for maximal lifetime production. About 20 to 30 per cent of the increase in production from one lactation to the next is due to growth in size; 70 to 80% is due to the stimulating effects of the repeated pregnancy and calving," he said.

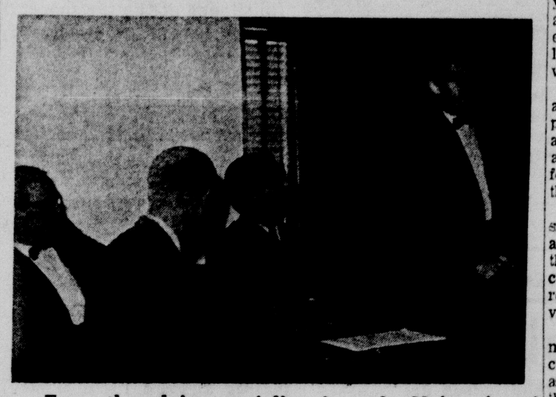
"Underfeeding of young bulls slows growth, delays puberty and reduces the ability to produce sperm. If stunted in growth the sperm-producing tissues of the bull apparently never fully recover."

J. L. Albright spoke on milking machines, their use and care.

"Nobody is satisfied," he declared. "There is a confusing and expensive lack of standards. Illinois dairymen now use machines made by 20 some manufacturers and they're all different. Pulsations range from 45 to 120 per minute, with a vacuum of from 10 to 16 inches. Such variances are extremely difficult to evaluate and makes it almost impossible to draw up recommendations."

Albright said that skilled operators of today's equipment can milk a high producing cow in three to six minutes. Holland, which has many of the best dairymen in the world, has raised its sights on fast milking and has introduced a machine that operates on a vacuum of 27 inches, as compared with current U. S. machines with a vacuum of 10 to 16 inches.

Dr. Touchberry brought over 12 families of Drosophila flies to show the various methods used to evaluate the transmitting ability of bulls. Shown at the microscope is Francis Ater, rural route 2, Arenzville; behind him Herbert Eidson of Timewell and Charles Ater of Arenzville examine a bottle of flies that have had the advantage of both superior ancestry and superior environment. They are much larger, much more aggressive, much more fertile, longer lived.



Four other dairy specialists from the University of Illinois accompanied Dr. Touchberry to Pittsfield and they are shown here answering questions. From left they are J. H. Byers, Leo Fryman, Jack Albright and N. L. VanDemark.

Farm Adviser Herb Wendler was in charge of the program, which was held Tuesday at the Pike County Farm Bureau.

W. O. Scott will again speak in the afternoon his topics being Weeds or Yields and Quality Seed and Crop Varieties. Steve Moore, entomologist from the Natural History Survey will discuss Bugs, and Worms, Feed'm, Starve'm. Bicket will again have charge of a question and discussion session.

The noon lunch will be provided those attending by the Carrollton Bank, The Greene County National Bank, the White Hall National Bank, the Roodhouse National Bank, the State Bank of Eldred and the Farmers State Bank of Greenfield.

STOCKS OF LEGUME, GRASS SEEDS AMPLE

Supplies of legume and grass seed are about the same as they were a year ago and are generally adequate for 1961 needs. Supplies of most kinds are smaller than average, but farmers' needs are smaller too, since they are gradually reducing their use of rotation hay and pasture. Furthermore, substantial amounts of some kinds of legume and grass seeds will be imported.

The supply of alfalfa seed is estimated at 171 million pounds, down 7 percent from a year ago and down 27 percent from the 10-year, 1949-58, average. Producers sold their 1960 crop of alfalfa seed for prices averaging about $27.50 a hundred pounds, or $1.80 less than the year before.

The supply of red clover seed, 120 million pounds, is 10 percent above last year and 5 percent above average. Producers received $21.10 a hundred pounds for their crop, $5.00 less than the year before.

Lespedeza supplies are estimated at 102 million pounds. This is 27 percent short of last year and 37 percent short of average. This shortage is not expected to be made up by imports. Farmers were paid $12.20 a hundred pounds, $2.28 more than the year before.

The supply of sweet clover seed is figured at 46 million pounds, 9 percent less than a year ago and 25 percent less than the average of 10 years. Imports will add to supplies. United States producers were paid about $61.60 a hundred pounds for their 1960 crop, $2.10 less than the price received for the previous crop.

The alsike clover seed supply totals 11 million pounds, off 14 percent from the year before and off 30 percent from the average. This supply will be supplemented by imports. Farmers got $16.50 a hundred for their 1960 crop, $2.10 less than for the 1959 crop.

The supply of Ladino clover is 6 million pounds. It is about the same as last year and is considered to be adequate. Producers received $60 a hundred pounds, $10 more than a year before.

Little Demand For Timothy

A supply of 60 million pounds of timothy is 28 percent more than last year and 18 percent more than average. The 1960 crop was sold by farmers for $5.86 a hundred pounds, $5.00 less than they received for the previous crop.

The supply of tall fescues (Alta and Kentucky 31) is 33 million pounds. This is 18 percent less than a year ago, but 16 percent more than average. Farmers sold their seed for $11.30 a hundred pounds, $5.30 less than the year before.

The supply of 18 million pounds of smooth bromegrass is a bit less than a year ago, but 22 percent more than the 10-year average. The price received by farmers was $9.45 a hundred pounds, $5.85 less than the previous year.

Of orchardgrass seed we have 16 million pounds, which is up 18 percent from a year ago and is about an average supply. Farmers sold their 1960 crop for $15.60 a hundred pounds, down $7.40 from a year before.

Face Flies Prosper, Loom As Top Insect Problem During 1961

H. B. Petty said last week that face flies might present one of the farmer's most important insect problems in 1961.

"They will be just as bad as last year, if not worse," he continued. "They'll probably be most severe in the northern one half to two thirds of Illinois. So far they have not been troublesome in the southern one third to one half. Face flies are so named because they cluster on the faces of cattle and horses."

Petty, describing the 1961 insect outlook, spoke before the Illinois custom spray operators' training school. He is an extension entomologist with the University of Illinois and the Illinois Natural History Survey.

Speakers at Dairy Day in Pittsfield Tuesday announced the following control program for face flies. It has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration and the U.S.D.A.

Treat dairy animals when fly populations exceed 5-10 per animal.

At least 90% reduction can be obtained by applying 0.2% DDVP in a sirup bait to the foreheads of the cattle. Use a single 6-inch stroke of a 1-inch paint brush, or three 6-inch strips with a squeeze bottle. Apply after morning milking for two weeks, and every two or three days for the rest of the fly season.

He said that two Illinois areas could look forward to chinch bug troubles. One area includes DeWitt, Macon and Piatt counties and fringes of the counties surrounding them. The other covers southeastern Bond county and the north-central section of Clinton county.

Before chinch bugs develop, however, they must have dry, hot weather and thin stands of small grains.

Fewer Corn Borers

The outlook for corn borers is not too serious. How severe they become depends mainly on weather and planting time. If farmers plant early and the weather is favorable for the borer, damage could occur north of a line from St. Louis to Paris, excluding extreme northeastern Illinois. This applies to field corn.

Grasshoppers will probably present moderate troubles north of a line from Lawrenceville to Carthage.

In southwestern and west southwestern Illinois, Hessian flies increased this past year. In southeastern and east southeastern Illinois, however, a dry fall and poor germination lowered the fall infestation of these pests that attack wheat.

New Hessian Fly Peak

Petty adds that Hessian flies were at a peak in 1956. Then their numbers decreased until 1958. Now he warns that they are approaching another peak, which may occur this year in some areas.

Northern counties can again expect a spittlebug problem. But it will not be serious. Central counties will have a light infestation. Since spittlebugs attack hay, and hay is a surplus crop in many areas, few farmers attempt to control these insects.

Wanted: Bowlers For Farm Bureau Tournament Play

All Morgan county farmer-keglers who would like to enter the district bowling tournament, a part of the annual Farm Sports Festival sponsored by the Illinois Agricultural association, are invited to see John Chambers, local Farm Bureau organization director, or Bill Denham, bowling secretary, at the Service company filling station.

The district contest will be held at the new Strike-n'-Spare alleys at 3220 Stanton street, Springfield, on the belt line near the Illinois Farm Supply feed mill.

This season some 40 bowlers have competed in the Farm Bureau league, which meets each Monday evening at the Bowling Center.

"These men will form the main section of our district entries," Chambers says, "but we need a few more women and young people to round out our entry lists."

Last year the Morgan county men's team placed 11th in the state; mixed doubles took first, and so did the husband and wife team.

Winners in the Springfield meet will represent the district in the state tournament to be held in Decatur March 7.

Game For Indoor Fun

By Joseph A. Smith

Make It Yourself

I'll bet that there are some of you readers who like to shoot rubber bands and pea shooter weapons—whether it is the proper thing to do at the time or not.

Well, this can be real fun at the proper time and place. You say you doubt it? Well then try these games some snowy day.

First run up to the attic (or elsewhere) and find a large piece of cardboard. Cut down to a 12 inch square piece, and divide this with pen and ink into 36 equal size squares similar to a checker board. Each individual square would then be exactly 2 inches square.

Now give each of these individual squares a numerical value (suit yourself.) Round up first a dozen rubber bands, give 6 to your buddy, and keep 6 for yourself.

Place the play board on a table near the center of it, step back some distance, and shoot your rubber bands towards the board. Wherever the rubber band lands is the score you make.

For scoring why not play a ten inning game; each individual time the player is allowed to shoot all 6 rubber bands, and to add up his total score. A complete game will consist of 10 different sessions by each player. Easy you say? Oh yeh? You try it and see!

Got Strong Breath?

Another version of this game for something different would consist of using the same game board this time placed on the floor near the center or better yet the corner of a wall but around 12 inches in front of the wall.

Now hunt around in the kitchen for two or more regular drinking straws (depending on the number of players). Also a number of small sized beans that will fit inside the straws.

Stand back of the board some distance and blow the beans at the floor target allowing for both distance and anticipated bounce. The score of our game might be 100 or more points. If you're long winded with a lot of puff, you can make it more fun by standing further back!

A limited space game might use toothpicks in place of beans; then you need only stand back say 3 feet or so and puff away for all you're worth! Score in the same manner!

Mystery Of Silent Voices

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 4: Which Receiver?

Two examples of smaller communications receivers are the Heathkit AR-3 receiver (costing around $30.) and the Philmore Kit (with "S" Meter) 5-tube superhet (costing around $40). For the better financially supplied person with some basic knowledge of radio and assembly practices, the Knight Kit Model R-100 is a strictly first class communications receiver.

What if you don't wish to build your receiver you ask? Well, perhaps you might be able to buy a good-used and usually reconditioned communications receiver.

Oftentimes wholesale radio stores and mail order firms have these for sale at reasonable cost. These receivers in the lower priced class might include any of the following types. (We shall show no preference for obvious reasons). S-38 Hallicrafters—available in A, B, C, D, & E models), SW-54, National NC-33 or NC-66, Heathkit model AR-1, AR-2, or AR-3, etc. If purchased from a reputable wholesale firm (which has usually taken these in as trade-in on newer gear and oftentimes re-conditioned them before re-selling them), they should be capable of plenty of additional service to you.

If the budget is somewhat less limited, there are many more ready-made receivers that the newcomer could purchase Good-used. In the so called "Medium Priced" class we might mention the following: Hallcrafters S-40, S-40A, or S-40B, NC-77 or NC-88, Hammerlund HQ-120 or HQ-129, etc. The choice of a higher priced receiver is naturally a matter of personal choice and funds available.

Now let's just stop here; the last article of these three will take up actual sample set-ups, ways of "souping up" these used receivers, and antennas and ground suggestions. For additional information of available receivers see any current wholesale catalogue or flyer.

Alan Bartlett Shepard Jr.

U. S. Navy Lieutenant Commander Alan Bartlett Shepard Jr. is one of the seven Project Mercury astronauts. Shepard is five feet, 11 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds and has blue eyes and brown crew cut hair.

All seven Project Mercury astronauts are about the same height and weigh about the same amount as Lt. Com. Shepard. This makes it easier for the scientists to design the space capsule that will take one of them into orbit and bring him back alive some time this year.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., was born on November 8, 1923, in East Derry, New Hampshire, where his parents, Col. and Mrs. Alan B. Shepard Sr., still live. Col. Shepard is a retired United States Army officer and an insurance broker. Shepard's sister, Mrs. Pauline S. Sherman, lives in Montclair, New Jersey.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., has a wife, Mrs. Louise Brewer Shepard, and two daughters, Juliana 8, and Laura, 12. Mrs. Shepard comes from Kennett Square, Pennsylvania.

Shepard went to grade school in East Derry and graduated from Pinkerton High School, Derry, New Hampshire, in 1940. After studying at Admiral Farragut Academy, Toms River, New Jersey, for about a year he entered the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

World War II Action

When he graduated from Annapolis in 1944, Shepard was commissioned as an Ensign and sent to the Pacific aboard the destroyer Cosgrove. Aboard the Cosgrove Shepard fought in some of the last battles of World War II. Shortly after the Japanese surrendered on September 2, 1945, the Cosgrove returned to the United States.

Shepard then took flight training at Corpus Christi, Texas, and Pensacola, Florida. He won his wings in March 1947. Then he was assigned to Fighter Squadron 42 at the Norfolk Naval Air Station and Jacksonville, Florida. After his tour of duty at these stations he spent several tours in the Mediterranean.

When he completed his tours in the Mediterranean, Shepard went to test pilot school at Patuxent River, Maryland, for two tours of flight testing. While at Patuxent, Shepard took part in an experiment to find information on light at different altitudes in different air masses over North America.

Like the ocean, the air has currents and eddies in it. The largest of these, which are continually changing, are called air masses.

Let's Go Birding—

Bald Eagles At Chatauqua

By Emma Mae Leonhard

"The ice was here, the ice was there
The ice was all around."

So Coleridge described a certain phantom spot in his well known poem, "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner." So extended the ice at the Chautauqua Wildlife Refuge before three of us birders on January 7.

This vast sheet of ice, glistening in the clear sunlight, reached out in front of us, to the right of us, to the left of us. Whipped by a cutting wind, we gazed in silence at the icy space.

Then far out we discerned a long dark line of something. Our binoculars revealed the secret: a stretch of open water practically filled with ducks, hundreds of them too far for us to identify. We were certain that most of them were Mallards, but we wondered whether some other species might be hidden in the gray mass.

Soon this gray mass became only a background for some individual dark bird forms strung along the edge of the open water. One of the forms arose and majestically coasted low over the ice; it was a Bald Eagle.

We focused our binoculars carefully on the distant line of ducks and succeeded in locating 26 Eagles stretching out on the edge of the ice-bound ribbon of open water. There the ducks and eagles were sharing quietly and courteously the same spot. As we swept our binoculars farther to the right of the concentration of ducks, we saw far out on the ice two more eagle forms.

We longed to see these great birds closer, but the wide barrier of ice loomed before us. Then we saw a mysterious white object perched on a protruding ice-covered stake. Could it be a Snow Owl?

Work as hard as we could, we were unable to locate any convincing marks of identification To satisfy ourselves we would have to move nearer. Should we venture on the ice? We did: a Snowy Owl dared us.

True Story—

Long-Ago School Girl

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 17: Dangerous Creeks

The winding creek, which Hannah and the others crossed, was never content in a straight or narrow channel and it twisted and turned this way and that on its journey toward the Illinois River. There it joined eagerly with many other tributaries in their mad rush to reach the Mississippi, the Gulf . . . and finally the great Ocean beyond!

Today, as you already know, men change streams to suit their needs, but in Hannah's time streams ran wild for the most part, and many such creeks, although they may have almost disappeared or dwindled to mere branches now, were wild and dangerous in early days. Although they created floods and washed away top soils, they must be credited with leaving rich layers of new soil which nourished bumper crops after the waters passed.

However, today, we can raise super bumper crops and keep our lands built up without the devastating floods of the past (although we do not have them entirely conquered). Yet we can truly say, "Thank You, Lord, keep leading us on, and help us keep Thy waters in hand!"

At one point during flood season, the children climbed a steep hill, crawling under or climbing over fences, picking their way among trees and vines and wading through tall weeds and wet grasses, to come out on the other side of the stream.

Rumbling Bellow

It wasn't unusual to encounter fences, for they often crossed pastures to avoid the heavy yellow clay and black mud that weighed down their young feet along the seldom dragged country road. But to avoid the mud, they could encounter another real danger unless they kept very near a fence, which is case of emergency, real or imagined, they could quickly scramble over.

They might hear the rumbling bellow of a bull in the near distance. Children were always warned about the danger, and there were fighting bulls in those days which Hannah well remembered years after . . . although she was never chased by one!

Shaky Crossing

One crossing was easy indeed . . . if you could walk a narrow board hung high over the stream . . . and who doesn't love a little shaky excitement now and then? So the Children edged along, yelling to the one in front or behind, "Don't shake the boards!" And because of danger . . . no one did when the creek was high!

There were two ways to avoid the stream at the other crossing.

What's That Wiggling?

The children could by-pass it by "going around the bluff," as they put it; but this was most dangerous . . . and no fun at all. Many times they would see a big spotted water moccasin, closely akin to the copperhead and poisonous also, as well as a "rattler" now and then!

The snakes would slither under rocks as the children shrieked and hurried on. Although a big boy would manage to kill one occasionally, and then scare the girls with it later by holding it up by the tail and, I'm sorry to say, chasing them.

But of course the snake was harmless! But they do squirm a long time you know . . . even after they're put out of business.

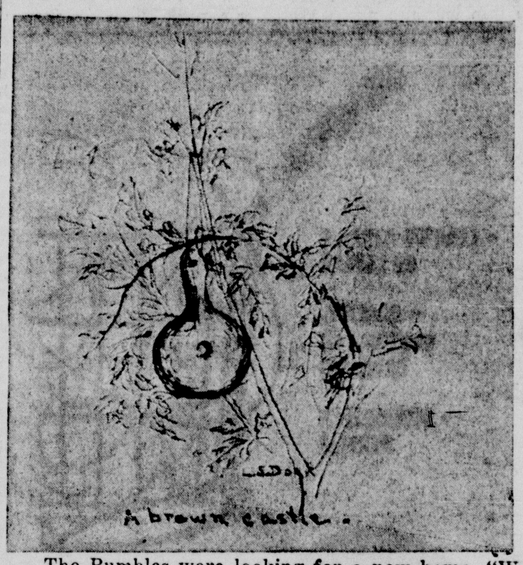
Bumbles Make Trouble

By Mrs. Otto Dorr



The Bumbles were looking for a new home. "We want one with flowers around it," Mrs. Bumble ruled. "It must be pretty." She searched through the larkspurs, petunias, roses and sweet peas but found no house site.

On she cruised into the forsythia where yellow blossoms hung earlier now replaced by green leaves. Deep among them she hunted until, all but ready to fly on, she saw a brown castle with a tall tower.

"Oh, what a fine place to live!" she was certain," But where is the door, there must be one?"

Around and around the walls she walked then climbed over the high tower, down the shaded side she explored, creeping watchfully. There was an arched doorway exactly the right size!

She stepped inside. "Why, what are all these sticks doing here," she puzzled and climbed to their top most row where a wren twitched a crooked one into place.

"Ha! a wren building here, she won't stay long, I know."

With one sharp look the wren dropped her work, "I certainly won't live with a bee!" she scolded and vanished quickly down her twig stairs.

Pantry For Honey

"That is that!" determined Bumble thought," Now this is MY house."

Promptly, rebuilding began with a good pantry for honey and more rows of six sided cells for eggs. Long and fast her servants labored until the gourd was as fine a castle as they could wish.

Mrs. Wren, too, found a new home, a swinging pottery cottage with a real chimney on its roof, looped by wire to a stout tree branch. She could see the gourd where the bees now worked and wondered if the house folks would like the bees' hum as much as they did the wren's music.

Mr. Wren shifted about gloomily on a lookout perch. "We shall see," he commented, "We shall see." And they both eyed the industrious bees sharply.

"Watch our cottage a moment," Mrs. Wren twittered warily, "I am thursty," and she flew to the bird bath.

Now's Good Time To Apply Soil Insecticides

URBANA—A research entomologist with the Illinois Natural History Survey says that he now approves the winter application of soil insecticides.

But J. H. Bigger said that winter applications are not designed to replace spring applications. They are merely a labor-saver, since farmers can make the applications during the slack season.

Up to now, entomologists have believed that winter applications were not so effective as spring applications. But after four years of testing, they appear to be equally effective in controlling soil insects that cause thousands of dollars of damage.

Farmers can make winter applications between December 1 and March 15. Disking in the application is not necessary even though the field is muddy, frozen or snow-covered. Freezing and thawing apparently work the insecticides into the soil before warm spring weather arrives.

Applications after March 15 must be disked in immediately. Otherwise the chemicals will evaporate when temperatures climb above 40 degrees.

Bigger used aldrin and heptachlor in his tests. He applied them as granules or in mixed dry fertilizers at the rate of 1½ to 2 pounds per acre. If aerial applications are used, he suggests applying them in limited areas on a trial basis.

Bigger gave his report before the Illinois Custom Spray Operators' Training School meeting on the University of Illinois campus.

University of Illinois farm economists figure that a good, fully equipped farrowing house costs about $300 per sow space. On the basis of about four litters a year with an average of 7½ pigs per litter, this costs amounts to about $10 per market hog produced per year.

J. Garrett Tolan, Angus Cattle King

From The American Angus News

J. Garrett Tolan, one of the great cattlemen in U.S. history, died Jan. 19 in a Springfield, Ill., hospital after a brief illness. He was 75 years old.

Under his tutelage, the J. Garrett Tolan Farms Angus herd became internationally known and respected. His career spanned 60 years, during which he compiled a fantastic record in breeding Angus cattle, and in exhibiting them at major shows and expositions.

Born of pioneer stock in Sangamon County, Illinois, he was brought up to love and respect good livestock. As the developer of the famous Elleenmere strain of Angus cattle, his name and his cattle became a legend during his lifetime. The influence of Tolan Angus, through the use of hundreds of Elleenmere-bred bulls, spread to every corner of the U.S., and to many other nations as well.

King Of Show Ring

Mr. Tolan's accomplishments in the show ring comprise one of the most impressive lists in the annals of American agriculture. His cattle won championships from coast to coast. The Tolan record at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, however, gained him and his herd the most fame. Mr. Tolan produced 14 International grand champions, six bulls and eight heifers. The bulls were Elleenmere 15, Elleenmere 85, Elleenmere 500, Elleenmere 1032, Elleenmere 1050, and Mr. Elleenmere.

In addition, his cattle won dozens of blue ribbons at the Chicago event, including the coveted get of sire and best 10 head awards. In 1946, his best ten head at the International included Elleenmere 500 and nine of his sons and daughters, an unequaled record in the beef cattle industry.

That Sale Of 1951

When offered to the public at auction Tolan Angus also made a tremendous record. The history making sales, called "Cattlemen's Holiday" auctions, saw cattle sold to breeders throughout the land. In 1951, the sale averaged more than $10,000 per head, a record for all beef cattle breeds to date. The bulls averaged more than $20,000 and the heifers more than $7,000.

Mr. Tolan served as president of the American Angus Association and was honored on many occasions for his outstanding success with purebred Angus cattle. The entire livestock industry paid tribute to him in 1948 when his portrait was hung in the famous Saddle and Sirloin Club gallery at the Chicago Stockyards.

Continuing Influence

The influence of Mr. Tolan's Angus will be felt for generations. His was a lasting contribution to the betterment of all U.S. beef cattle; a contribution which few men have made, although thousands have tried. He had a wealth of inborn cattle sense, shrewd judgment, and the knowledge of which animals to mate together. These attributes, combined with his ability as a fitter and showman, made him one of the livestock industry's chosen few.

In recent years he turned the actual handling of the herd over to his son John; daughter Sarah Ann Spitzer Jr. Also surviving are his wife, Mrs. Marie Tolan, and several grandchildren. All reside at Pleasant Plains.

Funeral services were held Jan. 23 in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Springfield, with interment in Calvary cemetery.

Weed Control Adviser Speaks In Calhoun Co.

HARDIN, Ill.— Two directors were elected to the executive board of the Calhoun County Soil Conservation District, at the group's annual dinner meeting Monday night in the Hardin school cafeteria. Loyal Linthicum was named to succeed Aloys Schleeper, whose term expired and who was not a candidate for reelection, and Walter Meyer was reelected. Meyer has served as vice chairman of the board during the past year.

Officers of the board will be elected in an organization meeting in the near future. Charles Nolte is now chairman of the board and Bernard Hillen is secretary-treasurer. The fifth member of the board is Howard Sibley. Harold Kraut is soil conservationist of the district.

James Jeffers, state weed control adviser, was the principal speaker at the meeting, and other guests included George Threlkeld, Jersey county conservationist; William Anderson, of the state conservation department; and Frank Owen, horticulture extension specialist. During the program, Chester Knight, vocational agriculture instructor of Unit 40 high school, introduced Robert Snyders, president of the Hardin F.F.A. chapter, and winner of the conservation award.

The annual report was given by Chairman Nolte. The report showed the practices completed in the county, as compared with the goals set up at the beginning of the year. A tribute was paid to the late Ray H. Johnson, Jr., who was serving as soil conservationist here, at the time of his death in an automobile accident in August.

Dinner was served to about 140, by the women of the Calhoun County Home Bureau. Mrs. Osa Phillips of Hamburg was in charge of the kitchen, and the decorations and serving committees were headed by Mrs. Leslie Wineland of Belleview.

Idyllic Marriages Full Of Disasters

Editor's Note — Hollywood's "idyllic marriages" seem to be breaking up with monotonous regularity. Why all those matrimonial disasters? A veteran Hollywood observer takes a look at filmdom's marriage-go-round and provides some answers.

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—June Allyson-Dick Powell; Desi Arnaz-Lucille Ball; Glenn Ford-Eleanor Powell; Jean Simmons-Stewart Granger. All were joined in what fan magazines call ideal marriages. All have split. And there are hundreds more.

So what's the matter with marriage in Hollywood?

Hollywood boosters will tell you there are more happy marriages per square swimming pool here than any other like community in the world. But where is there another community like Hollywood?

Critics—and headlines seem to back them—counter that Hollywood marriages are whims, that stars change mates for novelty, much as they switch agents.

Somewhere in between lies the truth. On the promise not to use names, I got some revealing intelligence from Hollywood husbands and wives whose split-ups made headlines.

Listen to one star whose wife, also a star, recently divorced him.

"The only villain a feminine star encounters in the course of a day is her husband. She gets up in the morning and a studio chauffeur is waiting to take her to work. He bows, scrapes and dashes for her make-up kit. He tells her how great she looks—even at 6 a.m.

"Next she hears compliments from her hairdresser, make-up man, the director, the studio boss, gushing fans and other hangers-on in a phony world.

"When she comes home for dinner at night, her husband growls at her: 'Oh, no, you're not sitting down with all that makeup on your face?'

"She cries: 'Everybody else thought I looked beautiful today.'

"I know it sounds far-fetched but, brother, I lived through 10 years of it. I know.

"My next wife is going to be some nice young girl who doesn't have to have a career to make her happy."

One famous actress who shed her actor husband—and vows she'll never marry another—says, "I just got tired of racing my husband to the mirror every morning."

Often two young people will fall in love when both are just starting in the business. One makes it—the other doesn't. This happened to one feminine star who divorced her husband although she claims she still loves him.

"At a premiere photographers would ask my husband to step out of the picture. I've even heard them give him the bit where they called him by my last name. Until it happened to me, I thought that was only something out of the script of 'A Star is Born.'

"A few years of this and my husband's whole personality changed. He became a heavy drinker and, what's worse, an obnoxious one. Then he started investing my money in crazy businesses that he knew nothing about. He lost a bundle.

"Finally, my advisors kept suggesting that I couldn't afford him, financially or socially. So I divorced him. And now I'm miserable—and so are the children.

"If I had had any class, I would have quit my career when I saw it booming faster than his."

"You can't realize how cheap some women can be until you are married to a screen idol. They literally threw themselves at my husband, even when I was in the same room."

One wife whose husband started in the movies but is now a major television star claims that TV saved their marriage.

"On a movie set, there is way too much time between camera set-ups—and much too much work away from home. That gives too much opportunity for devilment. And there are always plenty of ambitious young starlets around to provide the devilment.

"But television operates on a split-second schedule. There's no time to get in trouble when you have to turn a show out in three days. For one thing, it cut down my husband's drinking—also his cheating."

Not all the cheating is done by husbands in Hollywood.

"I would never marry a dedicated actress again," says one disillusioned male star. "To my ex-wife, a good part meant more than family, children, home or me—and she would do anything to get it."

One feminine star was divorced some years ago with the blackest of headlines. Publicity, carefully planted, had pictured her as the perfect wife and mother. The divorce was a shock everywhere but inside Hollywood. She had romances with practically every leading man she ever worked with.

"Her acting method was to throw herself so completely into a picture that she actually left her own personality and assumed the one in the script," recalls one male star.

"I felt that she was deeply in love with me when we made a picture together. When the picture was over, I couldn't even get her on the phone."

One actor was married to one of the great beauties of the screen.

"Everybody envied me because they only saw my wife after hours of makeup and preparation. True, she has great natural beauty and she's going to keep it.

"At night when she went to bed, she was so covered with creams that it's a wonder she didn't slide out. My next wife will not be so beautiful in public, perhaps but she won't look like a zombie at the breakfast table either."

Those are some of the reasons, carefully documented, behind some Hollywood divorces. In each case the charges in court read the same—mental cruelty.

Why pay up to $30 more for a chainsaw when you get so much more "workability"

with a CLINTON SUPER CHAINSAW

Quick starting... always Easy handling... at all angles

Some chainsaws seem awkward, heavy to hold. Some are lightweight but without sufficient cutting capacity. With the Super, you get both cutting power and ease of handling. Weight is balanced in the chainsaw itself. In operation, this balance works for you—the chainsaw helps feed itself into the cut. With the Super, you get to choose a saw that's custom-suited to your needs. You can have the greater dependability of gearing or the extra speed of direct drive. Select your guide bar—Roller Tip for 20% more speed, or Stellite-Tipped for longest wear. And the low price makes it unquestionably the best chainsaw you can buy.

In Potentially Explosive Jordan—

Plotting To Make 'Lawrence Of Arabia'

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON—(NEA)—An American, an Englishman and an Irishman are plotting in King Hussein's Hashemite kingdom of Jordan to make "Lawrence of Arabia" a success.

The American, Hollywood movie maker Sam Spiegel, is producing a film about the controversial Col. T. E. Lawrence who died in 1935, leaving a trail of question marks behind him.

Because politics in the Middle East are unpredictable and the Arabs could conceivably take an instant dislike to the producer because of his religion (Jewish); the film because of its hero (Lawrence); some of the performers because of their nationality (British), Spiegel called in the Englishman, one of the best political trouble shooters in the business.

He is Anthony Nutting, 40, a former undersecretary of state for foreign affairs in Britain. Once Sir Anthony Eden's private secretary, Nutting, from his polished toecaps to his well-groomed hair, is as handsome and debonair as his former employer.

So how did former pillar of the British Foreign Office whose education is quite correct (Eton and Cambridge); whose clothes are bought in the right place (Saville Row); whose club memberships are the best and whose listing in Britain's "Who's Who" cites hunting and fishing as major recreations, get involved with a Hollywood producer and an Irishman who will play Lawrence?

"They (the British Foreign Office and Hollywood) are not as different as all that," Nutting says. "In each case, you operate as a team and you have a boss to preside over the cabinet. It just happens that the boss' name is Spiegel instead of Eden."

Nutting was called in, for one reason, because he has been a friend of King Hussein since they had lunch after a cricket match as schoolboys attending Eton and Harrow respectively.

"LAWRENCE OF ARABIA" . . . and played by O'Toole

Perhaps because of this friendship, King Hussein has placed his desert patrol, 15,000 men, at the disposal of Spiegel for the film. So that explains the Englishman. Now what about the Irishman?

He is Peter O'Toole, 27, a darkhorse cast in the lead role after Marlon Brando, the original choice, was found to have a previous commitment to another motion picture.

Although O'Toole scored a hit in three Shakespearean plays last summer, he is unknown to both American and British filmgoers. So he is being surrounded with a host of male stars which probably will include Cary Grant, Kirk Douglas, Jack Hawkins, Sir John Gielgud and Horst Buchholz.

O'Toole, who has yet to learn how to ride a camel, talks to Nutting about the best ways to blow up bridges and otherwise play havoc in Jordan. After all, this is a film about Lawrence and, anyway, King Hussein will be amply compensated for any damage done to his communications lines.

Now what damage did Lawrence, alternately called a hero and a knave, actually do? He led the Arab revolt against the Turks in 1916-18. Lawrence, after breaking the back of the Ottoman Empire, was being hailed as the "uncrowned King of Arabia" when he disappeared into obsucrity by enlisting in the Royal Air Force under an assumed name.

"We shall film desert battles, the Turkish massacre of an Arab township and the Arabs' retaliation," Nutting explained. We shall have to use Arabs to impersonate the Turks, of course. Otherwise, the fighting might get too realistic."

Free Treatment—

VETERANS HOSPITALS
By FRANK CAREY
Assocated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half a million American veterans are receiving free medical treatment, under the government's far-flung Veterans Administration, for ailments and disabilities having no connection with their service in uniform.

Such benefits are legal, approved by Congress, and have existed since World War I.

But the snowballing cost of free medical aid for the nation's aging veteran population, viewed against a background of huge defense outlays and rising federal expenditures, may prompt the new 87th Congress to take a harder look at the VA's free-treatment policies.

Are American taxpayers being victimized by a "gigantic giveaway" to pay for the care of war veterans who have nonservice-connected disabilities?

Are VA medical costs excessive and would it be cheaper for the government to pay for the care of veterans in private hospitals?

The American Medical Association's Council on Federal Medical Services says the answer to both these questions is yes. The Veterans Administration says no.

Allegations aired in Congress and elsewhere also claim that significant numbers of ineligible veterans are chiseling and lying in order to get free VA hospital care —including some "who drive up to VA hospitals in their own Cadillacs... and (others) who enter with several thousand dollars in their pockets."

VA officials promptly declared that all studies made by themselves and by others indicate that "chiseling" is practiced by only half of one per cent of the thousands of nonservice-connected cases handled annually by VA.

Under present law, veterans with nonservice-connected ailments may get free care in VA hospitals if beds are available and the veteran signs an affidavit that he is unable to pay for his own medical care.

Many private doctors object to Uncle Sam's paying the bills for nonservice-connected cases. The Maryland State Medical Society has urged the American Medical Association to seek a full-dress congressional hearing on the subject. The Marylanders contend nonservice-connected cases constitute more than 85 per cent of all those treated by VA.

VA says 66 per cent of all its hospital patients are nonservice-connected ones and that of these, 8 per cent also have service-connected disabilities.

The AMA's policy-making house of delegates has approved the Maryland proposals but referred it for further study.

Just what is the scope of the VA medical department around which such controversies swirl?

It has a $1,170,502,000 appropriation for this year—about a fifth of VA's total appropriation of $5,363,302,000.

It's a system of 173 hospitals spread throughout the country, plus approximately 199 outpatient clinics and home-town medical services which together provide care for nearly two million patients yearly. VA also has many research laboratories.

VA hospitals have about 123,000 beds, with an average of 112,000 filled on any given day.

During the year ended June 30 —the latest period for which figures are available — 664,714 patients were treated in VA or VA-contract hospitals plus thousands of others treated on an outpatient basis or by private doctors paid by VA.

Of the 664,714 treated in hospitals, 493,801 were general medical and surgical patients; 116,349 were neuropsychiatric; 31,074 tuberculous; and 23,490 neurological.

The most recent cost-of-treatment squabble between VA and AMA representatives occurred in 1958. At that time the AMA's federal medical services committee reported on a study comparing VA costs with those of nonfederal state and private hospitals.

The VA had said in the past that valid comparisons could not be made because VA's cost figures include such additional things as physicians' salaries, more varied staffs, differed administrative methods, complete rehabilitation of the patient, and even recreational programs.

So, the AMA committee said, its study "attempted to derive adjusted cost data covering only those VA services which may be considered common to all hospitals."

Their conclusion was that "after 'extra' VA services have been excluded, the average case costs three times as much as the average nonfederal case."

The average costs were obtained by multiplying the daily average cost per patient by the length of stay in a hospital whether it was general medical and surgical, neuropsychiatric or tuberculosis.

Lengths of stay are actually shorter for neuropsychiatric and tuberculosis patients in VA than in nonfederal hospitals, the report said. But for general medical and surgical patients, the stay runs about 30 days in a VA hospital, compared with about 7 in a nonfederal hospital. Hence the higher over-all cost.

The VA countered promptly declaring the entire comparison as invalid. The agency said that for one thing, "The VA has sought and obtained funds from Congress to provide medical care of high quality—not average quality. . . . Certainly the question of differences in the quality of care provided in VA hospitals and that provided in the average nonfederal hospital are pertinent factors."

VA and private hospital costs were not comparable, the VA said, since "at least 50 per cent of the patient load in VA general medical and surgical hospitals is comprised of long-term patients as compared with only about 13 per cent in nonfederal hospitals."

Dr. H. Martin Engle, VA's deputy chief medical director, says a very high percentage of all VA hospital patients have chronic, degenerative diseases which require long treatment. On any given day, says VA, more than half of its average 112,000 hospitalized patients are neuropsychiatric cases.

To critics who suggest that service-connected cases should be treated in military or private hospitals rather than in VA institutions, VA's medical director, Dr. William S. Middleton, says there just wouldn't be room.

The AMA holds that "the cost of providing care through the VA hospital system is an important point to consider now, with the nation's defense expenditures rising.

"It will become increasingly important as our huge veteran population grows older and begins to suffer the diseases and disabilities of age," it adds.

For years, the AMA has contended that treatment of veterans for nonservice-connected disabilities "should not be a federal responsibility but the responsibility of the individual and, when he is unable to pay for care, of his community."

Just what are the present costs of care in VA hospitals compared with those in nonfederal institutions?

The most recent available figures, as compiled by the American Hospital Association, are for 1959 and run this way:

1. For general medical and surgical cases: VA hospitals $24.13 a day; private hospitals between $28.28 and $31.16 a day for short-term cases, between $10.77 and $14.43 for long-term cases; state and local government hospitals $27.65 for short-term and $11.70 long-term. VA does not distinguish between short-term and long-term categories.

2. Psychiatric: VA $12.01 a day; private between $16.72 and $17.33; state and local $4.44.

3. Tuberculosis: VA $21.44 a day; private between $13.23 and $13.42; state and local $12.77.

Length of Stay: VA an average of 33.1 days for general medical and surgical cases; private between 6 and 7½ days for short-term; state and local 9.3 days. The Association had no figures available on long-term cases.

Psychiatric: VA 643 days for severely-deranged patients, 52 for others; private 53.1 days for psychiatric cases of all types; state and local 981 days.

Tuberculosis: VA 170 days; private 204.4 days; state and local 260.9.

Spokesmen for the American Hospital Association, which represents 90 per cent of the country's general hospitals, including VA's—say the association has "never taken any position th t costs as such are too high" in VA hospitals.

And, unlike the AMA, the association has not called for limiting VA care to service-connected cases.

But the AHA has voiced concern about the number of non service-connected cases receiving treatment saying, "We know of no basis for believing that the veteran in our nation is more economically disadvantaged than the rest of the population generally. . . . It is inconceivable to believe that one half of all veterans in need of hospital care are in the indigent group."

The AHA has also urged Congress "to restudy and clearly define the responsibility of the federal government to provide care for non service-connected disabilities of veterans."

The Global View:

Moscow Trying To Bridle Fidel

By LEON DENNEN
Newspaper Enterprise Analyst

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— There are increasing signs that Fidel Castro's appeal in Latin America is beginning to decline. Even Moscow is now trying to bridle Cuba's bearded dictator.

According to East European diplomats, the Soviet Union recently ordered its Czechoslovak satellite to stop, for the time being, further shipment of arms to Cuba. This move is believed to have been prompted by:

Premier Khrushchev's fear that Castro's unpredictable behavior will make it more difficult for the Russians to convince President Kennedy that they "genuinely" desire disarmament and peaceful coexistence.

Moscow's growing irritation with the fact that Castro tends to ignore Soviet "go slow" advice in favor of Red China's policy of revolutionary brinkmanship.

The Russians obviously wanted to exploit Fidel Castro for their own diplomacy of blackmail—just as they put the squeeze on West Berlin whenever Khrushchev seeks a summit meeting or other concessions from the West. But it is clearly not their intention that Castro should at this stage commit any open acts of aggression or organize armed insurrection as he tried to do in Venezuela and more recently in Peru.

"The strike movement in Latin America is growing in scope and scale.

"The struggle of the working class for its economic needs and interest have become part of the people's movement against Wall Street domination."

Khrushchev's mouthpiece distinctly underlines "economic needs and interests." In Typical Red doubletalk, there is a clear-cut difference between economic "strike movements" and open acts of aggression or armed insurrection. The "objective conditions," according to the Marxist-Leninist dogma, are apparently not yet "ripe" in Latin America for open insurrection of the type promoted by Castro.

Moscow obviously fears that Castro, who follows Mao Tsetung's and not Khrushchev's, timetable of revolution, is giving away the game. As a result, Cuba's growing isolation might close the door to further Communist penetration in Latin America.

Credit for the unfavorable turn in the fortunes of "Fidelismo" goes largely to Peru which had the courage to expose the Cuban Communist conspiracy and break relations with Castro's regime.

Some of Washington's frightened politicians and prophets of doom who constantly urge greater concession to Castro were wrong after all.

Peru proved that it is perfectly possible for a Latin American government to administer an open snub to Castro without bringing down a thunderbolt on its head. When the crucial moment came and President Manuel Prado decided that he had enough of Castro's meddling in Peruvian affairs, the followers of the Cuban dictator found themselves practically isolated.

Except for outright Communists and misguided students, nobody in Peru, not even the extremely poor, seem to have much time for Castro.

Of course, it is still premature for the United States to gloat over this new turn of events in Latin America. Castro's Chinese-inspired policy of revolutionary brinkmanship still numbers thousands of active supporters and hundreds of thousands of passive supporters.

The key to "Fidelismo" in many of the Latin American republics—the fertile soil on which it grows—is dictatorship, economic stagnation, lack of agricultural reforms and the horrible poverty and misery in which the masses of the people live.

As Jose Figueras, former president of Costa Rica and one of the leading democratic statesmen in Latin America, told me:

"It is the right and duty of the United States, the leading country in the Western hemisphere, to see that social justice is advanced in the Americas.

"The moral and economic weight of the United States should be employed not only to strengthen political democracy below the Rio Grande but also to further social and economic progress."

At last year's fall nationals most South players wound up playing five hearts doubled. West would beat the hand with an ace of spades opening, but invariably West led the king of clubs.

South would then discard his king of spades on dummy's ace of clubs and lead a low diamond. East would rise with the ace and no matter how the defense continued South would be able to ruff two of his diamonds in dummy and bring home the rest of the suit.

One East player managed to beat the hand. He simply played the eight of diamonds. South could have played the king, but South was too "smart" for that. How could East hold back the ace of diamonds when he could see that singleton diamond in dummy? So, South played the ten of diamonds and West won with the jack.

West led another club. South ruffed and was down to five trumps. He then went about the business of setting up his diamond suit by doing some cross ruffing. He did get it set up all right, but by that time East had control of the trump suit and South wound up going down two tricks.

Ramparts Of Kennedy's New Frontier Are Manned From The Yard At Harvard

EDITOR'S NOTE—No college in the country outstrips Harvard in turning out presidents of the United States and top government officials in general. Is one a natural by-product of the other? What is there about Harvard, located 400 miles to the north, that brings it so close to Washington?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—No matter what you may have heard, Harvard University is still located in Cambridge, three miles from Boston, on a big bend of the Charles River.

Its graceful Georgian steeples and bell towers, glistening like a modern Camelot against the drab winter sky, offer proof that this ancient seat of learning hasn't moved to the banks of the Potomac. The jumble of bicycles in the yard, the litter of sports cars outside the Faculty Club, the bookstores crowded with intense young men in button-down collars, pencil-slim ties and chino trousers, further testify that not all of John Harvard's sons have gone off to Washington to help old grad John Fitzgerald Kennedy —A.B. 1940—man the ramparts of his new frontier.

After all, Kennedy is not the first president to come from Harvard. He is the sixth, counting John Adams, A.B. 1775, John Quincy Adams, A.B. 1787, Rutherford B. Hayes, LL.B. 1845, Theodore Roosevelt, A.B. 1880, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, A.B. 1903.

William and Mary, Harvard's closest competitor as a presidential incubator, has turned out three—Jefferson, Monroe and Tyler—and arch rival Yale only one —Taft.

Four of Kennedy's Cabinet members are Harvard bred: his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, A.B. 1948, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, A.B. 1931, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, M.B.A. 1939, and Postmaster General J. Edward Day, LL.B. 1938.

More than a dozen other top appointees either went to Harvard, taught at Harvard, or did both:

Budget Director David Bell, Solicitor General Archibald Cox, Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert, Undersecretary of Defense Paul Nitze, Undersecretary of Treasury Robert Roosa, Housing Administrator Robert Weaver, disarmament coordinator John McCloy, defense comptroller Charles Hitch, economic advisor James Tobin, security chief McGeorge Bundy, and White House aides James M. Landis, P. Kenneth O'Donnell and Timothy Reardon.

In addition, U. N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson put in three years at the Law School, Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles lectured here and Walter Heller of the Council on Economic Affairs served as a Law School consultant.

At Harvard, the old school tie can be knotted into a lasting bond of affection. From sophomore year on, all the Kennedy brothers lived in Winthrop House, one of the nine residence houses strung out so picturesquely along the river. Benjamin Smith, the new senator from Massachusetts, roomed with Jack Kennedy; so did football Capt. Torbert MacDonald, a key campaign aide.

Aside from complimenting him on his "good taste," Harvard President Nathan Pusey has scarcely lifted an official eyebrow at the Kennedy raids on his academic larder. Tradition is on the side of acquiescence.

The nation's oldest and richest college, proud possessor of the biggest university library — six million volumes, fattest endowment—currently a half billion dollars, highest paid faculty—professors average $17,000 a year, and one of the brainiest student bodies —more than half graduate cum laude—anywhere in the world, has grown used to serving as stockpile for government brain power.

Although Franklin Roosevelt, like Kennedy, dipped deep into the pile, the phenomenon is not limited to alumni presidents, nor even to Democrats. West Pointer Dwight D. Eisenhower chose the then president of the university, James Bryant Conant, as his ambassador to Germany, and surrounded himself with such Harvard products as Henry Cabot Lodge, Christian A. Herter, Charles Bohlen, Douglas Dillon, Winthrop Alderich, among many others.

No matter which party is in power, the Boston to Washington parlor cars have always done a brisk business with Harvard professors trundling down to the capital with crammed briefcases to confer on a variety of problems.

Harvard's attitude toward its academic commuter problem was long ago summed up by a secretary in President Charles Eliot's office who archly informed caller that "the president is in Washington, conferring with Mr. Roosevelt." The Roosevelt being conferred with happened to be Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States. Being a Harvard man, he would have understood.

Other elements in the country, however, have had difficulty understanding why so many Harvard men get into government.

A Midwest weekly, chagrined at the number of Kennedy appointees from Harvard, was moved to "wonder why always, or almost always, we must apply to Harvard when the really important posts need filing. Is Harvard the only school that turns out experts?"

The question amused the editors of The Crimson, Harvard's outspoken undergraduate daily, just as it might have amused John Kennedy and Franklin Roosevelt in their days on the Crimson board. Still, it seems valid enough.

What is there about this school that makes it a stepping stone to greatness or, as William James called it, "a nursery for independent and lonely thinkers?" What, beyond the fact that it is old, rich and serves beer at its commencements, makes it different from any other college? In short, what's so hot about Harvard?

Around the Yard, as the campus is called because it once shielded the cows of Cambridge from ravage by local wolves, the question stirred considerable comment.

"A large proportion of the nation's ability tends to come to Harvard," answered Law School Dean Erwin Griswold, a Republican hit hard by the Kennedy faculty raids. "Twenty-five per cent of all the law schools teachers in the country today went to Harvard. It's perfectly natural that if you start picking able people, the chances are pretty high that they came here. If someone wanted to make a list of the Harvard men appointed by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, it would be just as impressive."

Arthur Holcombe, retired government professor who taught Joseph P. Kennedy Sr. and all the Kennedy boys, says "Harvard's policy is to give the public service first call on its faculty. It's a good policy. The professors learn something, and it brings the school to the attention of bright young men."

Holcombe is a pretty good example of the policy. In World War I, he helped design the first income tax form. In World War II, he was on the War Production Board. Somewhere in between, he got a youngster named John F. Kennedy interested in politics by assigning him to follow the congressional doings of Bertrand Snell, an Upstate New York Republican.

"The boy's whole background was Boston and Democratic," recalls Holcombe. "I figured it wouldn't hurt him to know how the other side thinks. He got interested and did a fine job."

Similarly, a Harvard professor talked Theodore Roosevelt out of becoming a naturalist and steered him to politics. Another aroused the social conscience of Franklin D. Roosevelt and got in return a theme paper urging Southern colleges to admit Negroes.

Harvard has a way of drawing people out.

Was it something in his Harvard background that inspired John Quincy Adams to back old foe Thomas Jefferson on an unpopular issue and thereby win a place in John Kennedy's "Profiles in Courage"?

The (Cigar) Smoke Shifts Its Direction

By WARD CANNEL
Written For NEA

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Finally, after two years of repeated requests from Havana, U. S. citizens are beginning to take Fidel Castro seriously.

The tipoff comes, as it should, from the boys down on the corner in front of the cigar store. To wit:

● Longshoremen in New York have decided not to handle Cuban leaf on the piers or transfer it to foreign-bound ships.

International Longshoremen's Assn. spokesmen say the decision was made by the men themselves.

● Larger tobacconists are displaying and promoting Dutch, Brazilian, German, Danish and Philippine cigars because, in the words of one merchant:

"There suddenly seems to be a groundswell of popular interest in non-Cuban cigars."

● The Philippines, which never took advantage of its unique treaty right to sell the U. S. an annual 180 million pounds of duty-free tobacco, has started a $1 million campaign to interest American cigar makers in Manila brands and leaf.

It all adds up to a big change in U. S. sentiment.

As short a time as two months ago, Cuban cigars and tobacco (used in many domestic brands) were flowing into this country at an increasing rate despite Washington-Havana tensions.

Big tobacco importers were assuring uneasy distributors and habit-bound smokers that the Cuban supply would continue without interruption or price rise.

Now, however, it is the demand that is in jeopardy. And, according to the trade magazine, United States Tobacco Journal, some of the smaller Tampa manufacturers are beginning to feel the pinch of short supply.

It is an ironic jest that Cuba may lose her biggest tobacco market at the very moment when cigar sales in the U.S. threaten to run wild.

For the first time since the cigarette overtook them, American cigar makers are out to lure the young smoker—with $35 million assigned to the job.

It's the cream of the jest that President Kennedy and his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, are cigar smokers. Both, of course, are young men. Both will be in front page news photos.

"We didn't do it," says one big industry executive. "But it's wonderful. Oh boy, is it wonderful."

Two File For Commissioner In Calhoun Co.

HARDIN — Two candidates for the office of county commissioner of Calhoun county have filed petitions, according to County Clerk Orville H. Jones. William Horman of Brussels will be a candidate on the Republican ticket, and Jerome Toppmeyer, also a resident of south Calhoun county, will be the Democratic candidate.

As only one candidate has filed on each ticket, a primary will not be necessary, Jones said. Steve Fortschneider, whose term expires this year, did not file for re-election.

Delegates to State

Mrs. Ray H. Johnson, Jr., president of the Calhoun County Home Bureau, and Mrs. Leroy Hagen, a member of the board, will be delegates to the Illinois Home Bureau Federation annual meeting next Tuesday and Wednesday in Urbana, Ill. Also planning to attend the meeting are Mrs. Peter W. Simon, Calhoun County home adviser, and Mrs. Elsie Dixon, another board member.

Mrs. Walter Schudel, immediate past president of the Calhoun County Home Bureau, has been invited to serve as a page at the state convention. The convention meetings are open to all Home Bureau members, although only delegates may vote.

With The Girl Scouts

Basic Training for new leaders of Brownie and Intermediate Girl Scout troops will be given this week at the Scout office and is open to all persons interested in receiving help with a troop. Training is offered for two days on Tuesday, January 31 and Wednesday, Feb. 1. Sessions begin at 9:00 a.m. and end at 2:30 p.m. with time out for lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesday will be given to a general survey of the Scout program and Wednesday, the group will divide into Brownie and Intermediate groups with a demonstration of a fly-up ceremony and other specific helps.

Luncheon

Another special event this coming week is the sweetheart luncheon on Thursday, February 2, at 12:30 p.m. at Hamilton's cafe in Jacksonville. All presons who were Girl Scout leaders or assistant leaders during 1960 or a part of 1960 are cordially invited to attend as guests of Illinois Prairie Council. No charge is being made for the luncheon since it is a way of honoring those persons who have given of their time and efforts to lead young girls in the Scouting program. Please call the office if you plan to attend the luncheon.

Members of the Camp committee will hold a regular session on Wednesday, February 1, at the home of Mrs. Perk Chumley, 340 East Michigan avenue, at 9:45 a.m. This meeting had been scheduled for the Scout Office but due to basic training sessions will be held at the Chumley home.

The Program committee will meet Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock at Hamilton's cafe for a regular session.

Last week's calendar was filled with meetings of mothers to arrange for new Girl Scout troops. Some of those in the offing are: a new second grade troop at South Jacksonville school which will begin sessions on Monday with Mrs. Jack Wise as leader and Mrs. Robert Perkins as assistant leader. A new Junior High school troop is also planning to hold a first meeting on Friday, at the home of the new leader, Mrs. Harold Zink, 839 Grove street. Miss Carol Hoelscher, a student at Illinois College, will assist Mrs. Zink.

Troop News

Mrs. Alvahlee McCarthy is giving lessons in first aid to the girls of Senior Troop No. 1 on Monday evenings.

An impressive fly-up ceremony was held last Thursday afternoon for the ten girls of Troop No. 23 of South Jacksonville school who now are Intermediate Girl Scouts. All of them were present and received Brownie wings as well as Girl Scout pins as each girl repeated the Promise and Laws. Mothers of the girls were present as well as Mrs. Hartman, Executive Director, who gave a short talk on the Scouting program to climax the ceremony. A flag ceremony by the girls opened the meeting.

The girls of Troop No. 9 and Troop No. 89 of Washington school presented an impressive program at the meeting of Washington P. T. A. held Monday at the school. The girls presented a flag ceremony to open the P. T. A. meeting and later in the evening gave a "Scout's Own for Founder's Day" play commemorating the 100th birthday of Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouting in the U. S. A. Mrs. Philip Bradish and Mrs. Hans Kant are leaders of the two troops.

The Brownies of Troop No. 82 of Lincoln school enjoyed an old-fashioned taffy pull at their meeting last week. Mrs. Clifford Gillis, the leader, was assisted by Mrs. Maxine Podeschi, her assistant leader. The event took place at Mrs. Podeschi's home. Half of the girls are working on the cooking requirements, half are doing the arts and crafts toward becoming Intermediate Girl Scouts.

Worthwhile Club Entertained At Moody Residence

Mr. and Mrs. Reat Moody entertained the Worthwhile Club at their home recently. After a potluck dinner, enjoyed by the members and their families, a short business meeting was held.

Mrs. Glenn Strickler presided; Mrs. Bertha Hunter led the pledge to the flag. The year book committee was appointed consisting of Mrs. Everett Lang, Mrs. Clyde Mason and Mrs. William Thompson.

Roll call was a new year's resolution. Mrs. Roy Newberry gave the program entitled "My Life and Hard Times With a Swimming Pool" and "Money Does Grow on Trees."

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Moody, Reta and Helen Robinson. The February meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Moody.

MERRY MIXUP

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — It was ladies night at a civic club meeting so "good, clean family type" entertainment was announced.

The chairman said there must have been a mixup by the agency which supplied the dancer.

American Ideas Find Room In The Backwoods Of Nigeria

By TOM DORSEY
Written For NEA

NSUKKA, Nigeria — (NEA)— Africa's most populous country has donned an American cap and native gown and thrown open its doors to nearly 300 university students.

The University of Nigeria, conceived and built here by the government of Eastern Nigeria, is the first in Africa to be established with basic educational concepts developed in the United States.

When the school opened, Dr. M. I. Okpara, premier of Eastern Nigeria, said:

"Educational systems—such as the land grant colleges of America—provide a vast reservoir of ideas and experience but the ultimate answers to the problems of Nigeria and Africa can only be found by their adaptation within our schools to meet the specific needs of our land and our peoples."

He said the university will be characterized by "its devotion to preparing students of all races, colors and creeds from all parts of Africa and the world to engage in the practical occupations involved in building a better society."

The university's faculty, under President Dr. George Johnson of Michigan State University, is dominated by Americans and Nigerians. But there also are staff members from India, Ireland, Sierra Leone and Britain.

Most of the Americans are affiliated with Michigan State. Also represented are the University of Michigan, Columbia University Teachers' College, Gramblin College of Louisiana and Miami and Baldwin Wallace of Ohio.

The coed student body includes more than 30 women. Eact student pays nearly $400 in tuition and resident fees annually.

The school year is divided into three terms, each 10 weeks long. English is the official language of instruction.

Initially, classes are being offered in English, economics, history, mathematics, education, sociology and other courses found in a typical American liberal arts college.

Eventually, the curriculum will be broadened to include science and engineering. Colleges of agriculture, law, medicine, commerce and others will be added.

Two classroom blocks, two student resident halls and most university staff quarters are complete. Work continues on other facilities.

The university was conceived six years ago after a fact finding tour taken by government officials through Europe and America. A law was passed in 1955 establishing the school.

The Eastern Nigeria Marketing Board will set aside $1.5 million annually for the university. The University of Nigeria fund was started in 1954 and totals more than $7.5 million.

Acting as liaison between the government and university is a six-man provisional council of leading world educators cooperating with the U. S. International Cooperation Administration and the Inter-University Council for Overseas Territories in the United Kingdom.

On the council are two Americans, Dr. Eldon Lee Johnson, president of the University of New Hampshire, and Marguerite Cartwright, an Afro-American scholar.

BLACKOUT ANTICS

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — When the lights went out at Oklahoma State University these things happened:

A student kissed several coeds in a hallway; four girls were trapped between floors in an elevator; and the fire alarm went off when the electric power was switched off.

WITH THE SPECIAL OFFER OF THIS 52-PAGE BOOKLET WRITTEN BY AN OUTSTANDING EDUCATIONAL AUTHORITY

There was a time when failure in school seemed no great tragedy.
That day is gone forever.
The world today gives its biggest rewards to those who make good grades. Admission to college, and even the award of jobs in many cases, depends on grades.
But, oddly enough, today's methods of mass education neglect the teaching of children how to study effectively in order to get good grades.
To supply the lack, this newspaper has arranged to publish a series by Dr. Leslie J. Nason, a University of Southern California professor and specialist in study methods, to guide those who never have learned how to learn.

Crimsons Play Good Ball To Whip Athens

Jacksonville Collects Third Straight Triumph With 68-54 Decision

One of the smallest crowds since the JHS bowl has been harboring basketball activities saw Coach John Chapman's Jacksonville High School Crimsons play one of their better ball games of the season and down the Athens Warriors, 68-54. The Crimsons were spotty, but at times looked like a team in which the mold has begun to take shape. They had a terrific first period, hitting on 10 of 15 attempts from the field and pouring in 21 points and an eight point lead. Athens was one of the most daring ball clubs, offensively, that the Jacks have faced and at no time or in any place were they hesitant about firing for the basket. Don Libby, their fine senior guard, surprised the Crimsons and the crowd both, numerous times with 35 and 40 foot shots.

Jacksonville started out with a bang. They made five of their first seven shots and ran up a quick 11-5 lead and with Kenny Norton ripping the nets for eight points and Ron Tomhave chipping in with six the Crimsons held a 21-13 advantage at the quarter. Both clubs were ragged in the second period and the Jacks got their first point with 3:39 gone in the stanza when Norton stuffed a rebound back into the basket, but Athens was just as erratic and missed five straight charity tosses, to keep Jacksonville on top by eight.

The Crimsons had a fine 52% shooting average by hitting on 14 of 27 shots while the Warriors could collect only 8 field goals in 25 attempts for a fair 32%. Don Libby kept Athens from falling completely out of the picture by getting nine of the Warriors' first thirteen points. The Crimsons were a little ragged in the second period and lost the ball several times on bad passes and thoughtless violations, but their third period performance gave them more than enough cushion.

The second half was all Jacksonville's. The Warriors stayed in the nine to six point margin until with 3:30 left in the third quarter, Baldwin hit two straight, Yates one, and Sweeney his two-pointer of the evening to push the Crimsons into a 42-27 lead, which they maintained thoughout. Athens could do nothing right and hit only 3 of 14 shots of every variety. Chip Baldwin continued his fine shooting in the final quarter and following a bucket by Tomhave to open the final canto, hit two more and the "Chapman chargers" were up by 19 and raring to go. With 5:02 left in the contest Jacksonville held a 21 point, 55-34, lead and Chapman began to send in the second squad.

The closest that Coach Bill Fee's Warriors came to the Crimsons in the last period was the final 14 point margin as soph Ron Yates and Baldwin popped in six points apiece. Don Libby was the game's leading scorer with 23 points, nine in the first period and ten in the fourth. Chip Baldwin and Ron Yates shared honors for the Crimsons with 15 each.

Of particular interest to local fans were the two officials for the varsity contest who were Bob Merris, former Sports Editor of the Journal Courier, and former star guard for the University of Illinois Bill Ridley.

Waverly Upsets Greenview For Ashland Crown

ASHLAND—Coach Woody Derickson's Waverly Scotties upset Greenview 67-55 and captured the first place trophy in the thirty-third annual Ashland Invitational Tournament. The Scotties were the definite underdog, but never were behind and won by the twelve point margin. Four men scored in double figures for Waverly with John Ford leading the way with 20. Vince Evers was high man for Greenview with 16 but was followed closely by Dan Miller with 15. The Scotties outscored Greenview 18-12 in the first period and 18-11 in the final quarter to grab the crown.

The consolation game was a nip and tuck affair with St. James coming out on the long end of 47-44 decision over Middletown. Bob Fredericks led the winners with 18 points and sophomore Ron Simpson matched that total for Middletown.

Trojans Fired Up In One-Sided Win; Bluffs Captures Third Place

By STAN SPOTTS
Journal Courier Sports Editor

Triopia High's Trojans went out and played themselves one whale of a ball game Friday night in turning back Routt for the championship of the PMSC Conference Tournament championship before a sellout crowd at Illinois School for Deaf.

When Triopia's fireworks had subsided, Routt found itself on the short end of an 85-54 count. The Trojans dominated all departments and received stellar performances from Alan Anderson, Charles Roegge, Earl Dufelmeier, Kent Hansmeier and Wendell Harbin. The first four were in the double figures and played an important part in Triopia's domination of the boards, which led to Routt's downfall.

In the consolation match, Bluffs took Petersburg, 64-59, behind the 37-point spree of guard Lee Fredrick, who also played a fine floor game. Fredrick captured the individual tourney scoring crown with 74 points in Bluff's three appearances.

Trojans Warm Up

Both quintets started slowly, testing each other's defense and during this opening 4:42 of cautious-type play Routt saw the lead only once, 3-2, on a basket by Fred Curtis from the side angle with 5:54 remaining. Curtis brought Routt within a point of the lead with 3:18 left, 5-4, but from there Triopia began its attack with Earl Dufelmeier hitting three quickies while teammate Alan Anderson added another bucket to offset Curtis' bucket and a 13-6 margin.

The Trojans weaved their pattern against Routt's 2-3 zone to shake Dufelmeier loose from the side and he didn't let them down as he pumped four in from this position in the initial chapter to account for half of Triopia's 16 points.

Routt would have been left out early save for Fred Curtis, who tossed in the Rockets' 10 opening points. Jack Lawless popped in a fielder with two seconds left to trim Triopia's lead to four after eight minutes, 16-12.

Triopia never trailed after Charles Roegge connected on a rebound attempt with 4:11 remaining in the first quarter but it looked as though Routt might catch up and go ahead when Sullivan hit from the top of the keyhole to make it 18-17.

But Rocket hopes sailed right out into the cold as Alan Anderson took over from the side and hit 14 points to get Triopia rolling. It was all over but the shouting for Arenzville-Chapin-Concord fans right then and there as the Trojans built up an 11-point margin and increased it to 13 at halftime, 36-23, on a layup off a fast break via the touch of Hansmeier eight seconds before the buzzer.

Triopia continued its domination of the boards to start the second half and hit seven quick points while Routt went the opening 3:09 without a point. The Rockets sliced the deficit to 15 points on three occasions but the Trojans had too much going for them. They hit eight of nine shots the third quarter to control a 56-37 three quarter lead.

The Trojans presented a smooth attack in the fourth quarter and encountered no difficulty in maintaining a 20-point-plus margin. Their balanced scoring and board control was more than enough to insure Routt its biggest setback in several years.

The PMSC champs, who just missed the crown by two points last year, hit a torrid 17 of 24 attempts the second half to finish with a game mark of 59 per cent, a mighty tough figure to top in any man's league.

Lee Fredrick, a junior, put on a new one-man show in Bluffs' third place victory over Petersburg, 64-59. Fredrick hit 10 points in the first quarter and 18 the second canto for a total of 28 the first half. He finished with 37. Don Dawson collected 28 for the losers, who are now 7-8 for the season. Bluffs' record is 14-4.

Coach Dick Garner's Bluejays never saw the lead although they managed to knot the score at 8-all with 4:21 remaining on a FT by Thomas. Bluffs went ahead to stay on a tally by Jim Cox with 4:08 showing in the initial quarter and although Petersburg threatened for the next three quarters, it never caught up. Bluffs wrapped up the triumph on two free throws by Cox with 1:41 left to play in the fourth quarter which gave the third place champs a 64-54 margin to finish up on.

Thornton Appears Ready For Run To Champaign

By EMIL STUBITS
Chicago Sun-Times Prep Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Thornton's Wildcats, the pride of Harvey, appear ready for the run to Champaign, the schoolboy World Series of basketball in Illinois. Thornton currently is rated 10th in the AP poll.

The Wildcats under Coach Bill Purden were hailed a likely Champaign representative as the season opened in November. The forecast looks better each weekend as Thornton Township continues to frighten the opposition a every turn.

Purden has built a solid club, composed of one super star—Bob Caress—a good big pivot in 6-feet-5-inch Leon Clark and a strong supporting cast. Other Wildcats are forwards Al Dehnert, Wilfred Henry and Ray Banks; fast-break artist Jack Dabon, who shares the back court posts with Caress; and John McKibben, a top-notch replacement at guard.

In addition, Thornton, rated high in The Associated Press poll, will be fortified for the stretch drive by the return to action of 6-foot-4-inch Rich Simac, the club's second best scorer last season.

Simac, who was sidelined because of scholastic difficulties, made up his classroom deficiency and becomes ready at midyear.

Harvey folks are certain Caress will gain All-State recognition by the time the town hosts the regional tournament the week of Feb. 27.

Shooting at the heavy regional tournament favorite — Thornton's Wildcats—will be Blue Island and Thornridge, the Cats' playmates from the South Suburban League, Sandburg and Bremen of the Southwest Suburban League, and independents Morgan Park Academy of Chicago and the Thornton Fractional North and South schools.

"In my book Caress already has earned all-state honors," insists Purden. "There's nothing he can't do or hasn't done for this team."

Caress, an All-South Suburban League football quarterback during the fall, missed most of the last basketball season because of a hip separation. He has great savvy and is particularly effective under pressure, a fine team player and a brilliant shooter from any reasonable distance.

"Clark had natural grace as a sophomore center last year when he led our scorers," Purden said. "The only fault I might find with Clark is his inconsistency—he'll score 30 points one night and come back with eight or 10 the next. But this club has over-all balance to take up any slack.

"Now with Simac going with Clark and 7-foot-3 Henry on the boards, we're in good shape. But we must concentrate on each opponent coming up—the South Suburban League title will take care of itself. The regionals? My, they're a long way off from here."

Blue Island, Sandburg and Bremen of the regional field figure as the only teams capable of waging a fight with Thornton. (Next: Chicago contenders)

L. M. "Nick" Carter has resigned his position as teacher, coach, and director of athelitics at Beardstown High school. It is now official, and his retirement begins June 1, 1961!

Mr. and Mrs. Carter have purchased a home in Sun City, Ariz., a new community twelve miles northwest of Phoenix, developed by Del Webb, owner of the New York Yankees, built around a championship golf course. The home adjoins the 15th fairway. "It is not easy, however," Nick said Friday, "to sever relations with Beardstown where we have many fine friends, and where the young people have been my interest and concern for 23 years."

Nick has always been 'in school'! It is interesting to note that he graduated from Elmwood High school way back in 1922. He lettered four years in basketball and track, and placed first in the shot put and discus at the State track meet in his junior and senior years. He was national champion in 1921, and attended Bradley University, lettering three years in football, three years in basketball and was captain his senior year, three years in track and as captain, also in his senior year. Nick was intercollegiate shot put and discus champion, and placed third in the National Intercollegiate. He was honored with nomination to Bradley's Hall of Fame in 1948.

Later he coached one year at Rantoul, eight years in Tuscola, four years at Robinson, and 23 years in Beardstown. In football his teams won 177, lost 60, tied 17, with seven undefeated seasons. In basketball 428 games won, 281 lost, with eight regional championships, two sectional championships, having teams in the State Tournament in 1940 and 1947. His track teams have won ten District championships, placed fourth in the state meet in 1933, and fifth in the National Interscholastic meet in 1933. "It would be impossible to mention all of the outstanding boys who have made my coaching life successful," he said. "I owe them everything, and it has given me great pleasure to watch them develop their own successful careers."

Quincy Matmen Beat IBSSS

The wrestling Blue Devils of Quincy turned back the I.B.S.S.S. Warriors in a contest held on the local mat. The visitors garnered 10 points via the forfeit route and 10 more by pins giving them ample margin for victory.

The Warriors turned in a good card by winning five matches and gaining one draw. One I.B.S.S.S. victory was cancelled out due to the fact that the local grappler was over weight. However, the match was contested as an exhibition bout. In this match Warrior Lemuel Phipps decisioned Dwight Lewellyn by a 13-1 margin. At the 165 lb. class Dave Crawford continued his winning ways by defeating Quincy's Ted Sheppard 4-0. Other east side victors were Larry Boger, Jim Crockett and Larry Donaldson while Ron Johnson settled for a tie.

Johnson Learns Of Athlete Of Year Honors While Dressed As A Pirate

By BOB MYERS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Gracious but obviously pleased Rafer Johnson Friday acknowledged still another coveted honor—male athlete of the year for 1960.

The greatest all-round track and field specialist in the world was accorded the honor in the 31st annual poll of the nation's sports editors and writers conducted by The Associated Press.

The holder of the world and Olympic record in the demanding 10-event decathlon was the first American to win the award in three years. Fighter Ingemar Johansson of Sweden won in 1959 and Australia's mile king, Herb Elliott, in 1958.

Among the top candidates were Arnold Palmer, the biggest winner in golf last year, and Floyd Patterson, the only man in history to regain the heavyweight boxing championship.

Johnson got 398 points, Palmer 379, Patterson 168 and pro football's Norman Van Brocklin 141. Joe Bellino, Dick Groat, Jerry Lucas, Ted Williams, Vernon Law and Bill Mazerowski rounded out the top 10 candidates.

Said Johnson: "I can only say that I deeply appreciate the thoughts of these people as reflected in the balloting."

At the moment, Rafer, a 6-foot-3, 200-pounder, appeared to be anything but the picture of a champion competing in the Rome Olympics last summer.

He was in the costume of a pirate, bandana headdress, cutlass and all, for his role in a movie. He is under contract as an actor at 20th Century Fox and is working in his third movie.

Between takes on the set of "Pirates of Tortuga," Rafer talked of the past, the present and a bit of the future.

A movie career is his immediate challenge. He is still nervous before the camera.

What was his biggest thrill! Was it his dramatic triumph in Moscow in 1958 over Russia's decathlon star, Vasily Kuznetsov? Or perhaps his selection to carry the flag of his country at the head of the United States team in Rome last summer?

"It would have to be the gold medal at Rome," said Rafer quietly. "After all, I had worked four hard years for that."

Johnson still toys with the idea of a future as a diplomatic emissary overseas. In grade and high school in Kingsburg, Calif., and in college at UCLA, he was elected student body head and is a poised speaker.

NATIONAL GOLF WEEK SET

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—National Golf Day this year will be changed to National Golf Week. The nation's golfers will have an opportunity "to beat the champion" any day from May 29 through June 6.

On June 6, U. S. Open champion Arnold Palmer will meet Jay Hebert, reigning PGA ruler, on the North Course at Olympia Fields, Chicago. The winner's score will be the one the nation's golfers must beat.

Ladies will be permitted to use their regular handicaps, plus an additional 10 strokes.

When golfer Jay Hebert collected $11,000 for winning the PGA title at Akron, Ohio, last summer it was a new high for the winner of the event.

Bluejay Rules Roost

Lee Frederick of the Bluffs Bluejays ruled the scoring roost Friday night at Illinois School for Deaf in the PMSC Conference third place contest. Frederick showed some long range artistry to account for 37 points in Bluffs' 64-59 victory over Petersburg. The junior scoring ace hit 14 field goals and 9 free throws. He hit 28 points in the first half with 18 tallies coming in the second canto.

The death rate from tuberculosis continues to drop. In 1960, it was estimated at 6 per 1,00,000 population.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

In case you didn't know it, we Americans are living longer than we used to. To listen to the critics of our modern "high pressure" society talk, it's hard to believe, but researchers say we're doing it anyway. Back in 1900, the average lifespan for us in the U.S. was 48 years. Now, it's just three-tenths of a year less than 70. Apparently the contributing factors toward stretching out our lifetimes include better medicines, better sanitation, and better nourishment. And those things seem to make quite a difference, too, because adding 22 years to the average life in 60 years is a big increase. It's pleasant news, but be prepared. There'll always be some cynic who'll see these statistics and say that it's all an illusion . . . we're not living longer these days, it's just that with all the added pressure and pace of modern living, it just FEELS like it . . . !

The local philosopher dropped by with this gem: "America is the land of opportunity . . . which may explain why you hear so much knocking." WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO BABY JANE?

By Henry Farrell

Copyright © 1960 by Henry Farrell Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Blanche Hudson feels trapped. Crippled in a car wreck years ago, she has been living with her sister, the former child star Baby Jane, and now it has become apparent that Jane is unbalanced and hates Blanche.

VI

Jane carried the tray into the room and put it down on the desk with a deliberate abruptness, so as to produce a small angry clattering of china and silver. Immediately, she turned and started out again, but Blanche, moving forward held out a hand to detain her.

"Jane . . ." Even to herself her voice sounded thin and unnatural. "Jane, I wasn't ringing for lunch—thank you for bringing it—but there's something I want to—to discuss with you."

"Jane, I'm afraid I've had some bad news. There have been certain reverses lately—financial reverses, you understand, and—according to Bert Hanley we're going to have to give up this house. I've already ——" She paused, aware of a subtle quickening in Jane's attitude. "I should have told you sooner, I know that, but Bert kept thinking that things might change and——"

"When did you talk to Bert Hanley?"

"I—well, we didn't talk on the phone," Blanche fumbled. "He wrote me a letter, actually. But that doesn't make any difference. . . ."

Again Jane shook her head. "He didn't write any letter, either. There hasn't been a letter from his office since last—"

"Jane," Blanche broke in desperately, "it doesn't matter when or how I heard from Bert. That's not what we're talking about."

"You're lying," she said calmly, flatly.

Blanche started forward in her chair, but then the telephone shrilled and she looked around in a quick, convulsive movement toward the desk. The sound came so suddenly and so shockingly that she was unable even to get her chair into motion before Jane snatched up the telephone.

"Jane!"

Undeterred, Jane carried the phone from the room out into the hallway. With the briefest backward glance, she picked up the receiver. "Hello?" she enquired.

Too astonished to make any further protest Blanche listened in numb helplessness.

"Oh? . . . No. . . . No, she's not here right now. . . . Oh, no, that's not so at all. . . . Well, she's mistaken; she isn't interested at all. . . . Oh, yes, I'm sure. . . . Well, then she's changed her mind, so you can just forget it. . . . Oh, yes, I will if you want me to. . . . All right, then. . . . Goodby."

Replacing the receiver, she put the instrument back on the stand from which Blanche had first taken it. Turning, she started toward the gallery and the stairs.

"Jane!"

As Blanche moved her chair forward, Jane reappeared in the doorway, her eyes enormous with innocent enquiry.

"That was Bert on the phone, wasn't it?"

For a long moment Jane simply stood there. Then, finally, she shook her head. "It was one of those women who advertise on the phone Something about having the furniture reupholstered. I said you weren't interested."

"Jane, please . . ."

But Jane had already moved off into the dimness, and Blanche knew she would not turn back.

Rolling her chair to the doorway, she sat looking at the phone. It was Bert Hanley who had called.

Blanche reached out to the tray, picked up the cloth and pulled it away. Instantly her hand froze in mid-air. Her eyes stared from a face white with shock. She darted a hand to her mouth, to stifle the scream that was already rising in her throat.

It seemed ages that she sat there staring at the dreadful thing on the plate, at the bird stiff with death that lay there before her, returning her gaze of horror from empty eye sockets. It had been a small bird, a sparrow or robin and it had lain so long in death that it had gone even beyond the state of putrefaction. All that remained, really, were a few matted feathers, some of the thin parchmentlike skin and the delicate white bones. This, with macabre deliberation, had been placed at the center of a carefully arranged ring of lettuce, and upon the back of the corpse had been obscenely spattered a thick dab of mayonnaise. Beside the plate, resting on a napkin bearing Blanche's initials, were a precisely placed knife and fork.

'Camelot's' Sir Lancelot—

Latest Broadway Discovery Already Seeks Fresh Fame

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Robert Goulet is Broadway's newest star. But already he's restless while eagerly waiting for the chance to soar in some new theatrical sky.

As Sir Lancelot in "Camelot," Goulet's perfect features remind theatergoers of a young Robert Taylor, and his powerful tenor voice is one of the finest vocal instruments on the Broadway scene. He's in a smash hit which will undoubtedly run for years.

And yet—

"Being in a big Broadway show," Goulet says, "is something I've always wanted. But somehow I woke up the morning after opening night and I didn't have that feeling of exultation I had expected. For a week afterwards, I was terribly depressed.

"Finally, I decided it was because I had achieved a goal and had no goal to strive for. So now I have to dream about something else."

It will be a long time before he can do any more than dream. He's tied up to "Camelot" for two years. The impatience to get on with his career, now that he's established, is contractually curbed.

Goulet—the name is pronounced Goo-lay—was born in Massachusetts. He was a child when his father died and his mother took him back to her home in Edmonton, Canada. It was there that he grew up and finally decided his future was in music. He studied at the conservatory in Toronto.

The Goulet family was always musically inclined. His father had been a good amateur singer; the family get-togethers always turned into song-fests.

"My aunt tells me that when I was 2½," he says, "there was one of these family song-fests and I said, 'Why can't I sing, too?' From then on, for several years, I always sang for the family. But then I suddenly realized that everyone was watching me and I became shy."

For the next few family song-fests, the boy would absent himself at singing time. He timed his absence carefully, so that he would always return as the singing ended. Finally, his father took him aside for one of those man-to-boy talks.

"He gave me a talking to," Goulet says. " 'God gave you a voice,' he said, 'and you should use it.' I did."

He tried summer stock. He tried radio. He tried New York, sharing a cockroach-infested apartment with a friend while selling Christmas cards and gift wrapping at a department store to earn eating money. Nothing happened.

Then he went back to Canada and became a big star on television there. But his "Camelot" break came from left field. Don Harron, an actor now in "The Tenth Man," was called in to audition for the big Lerner and Loewe musical. Harron said he was already signed for "The Tenth Man," but suggested they listen to Goulet. The two men had worked together in summer stock once or twice, but they were never great friends. Nevertheless, Harron suggested Goulet.

GOULET: A knight is born.

He flew down for an afternoon, sang and read for the part, and got it. But it was 1½ years between then and opening night.

And so there is a basis for his impatience. He has already seen evidences of what he can do and where he can go, based on his "Camelot" reception. TV wants him, so does Hollywood. Eventually, he will be one of the big ones.

"I want to be a singing actor," he says. And then, with a modesty which can't be conveyed by written words, he added, "I want to be like Alfred Drake. I can sing better than Drake, but I'm not the actor he is."

He knows this will have to wait until his "Camelot" commitment is fulfilled. Waiting is difficult for a man with the ambition and talent of Goulet. He wants the future to hurry up.

"I'm terribly impatient," he says. "How about a screen test this afternoon?"
